Crusade against asbestos picks up some heat

By EMILY PREVITE

epreviti@nwnewsgroup.com

ZION - People have sweated buckets over the last few days as thermometers jumped and thermostats struggled to stay down.

Coincidentally, Illinois the Dunesland Preservation Society again attempted to turn up the heat on state government agencies just as the weather warmed.

The society is looking to the U.S. Attorney's office to start a criminal investigation of Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan - and her Asbestos Task Force – for what it claims are scientifically fraudulent research practices.

The society filed a complaint with the U.S. Attorney's office July 18. The complaint alleged that agencies with representation on the task force colluded to prevent prosecution of the government agencies that facilitated contamination at Illinois Beach State Park from asbestos containing material (ACM).

In a letter to Patrick Fitzgerald, U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Illinois, Dunesland President Paul Kakuris stated that former government officials would corroborate some of the claims therein. At press time, Kakuris had not produced contact information for such individuals.

Randall Samborn, spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's office, said he could not comment.

'Polluters sit on the task force group and the [attorney general] knows that, Kakuris said. "Those polluters are also her clients."

Brad Bradley, remedial project manager in the USEPA's Chicago office, said the complaint was similar to those filed in the past.

"I don't feel that any such thing has happened here," Bradley said of the accusations of scientific fraud.

"Certainly there's an extreme level of distrust that exists," Dunn said of the society's history of filing complaints against government agencies. "And that ... will continue, probably."

The society first approached government agencies about the issue in 1998.

Kakuris claimed officials have gone so far as skewing testing results to agree with its aims.

The Illinois Department of Public Health (IDPH) issued reports in conjunction with the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry

Sounding off

Illinois Dunesland Preservation Society's call for criminal investigation of state agencies by the U.S. Attorney's Office:

"Whatever information someone sends, we'll review it and decide whether to take action. We don't publicly comment on correspondence we received ... until public action taken, if at all." — Randall Samborn, spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's office

"Dunesland had a court case with us that was along similar lines ... and they didn't prevail." — Brad Bradley, USEPA

"There should be transparency in government and it's the antithesis of that now." -Paul Kakuris, president of the Dunesland preservation society

"There's no end ... this will never be accepted by this group. They will always know better. That's their right, but ... it's a little over the top." — Matt Dunn, chief of environmental enforcement for Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan (ATSDR) in 1998 and 2000 that deemed conditions safe for visitors.

"They wanted the conclusions to allow them to cover up that members of the task force are polluters," Kakuris said.

"We're not above or beyond suing other governmental agencies," Dunn said of the attorney general's office. "But we don't believe that violations are occurring."

The attorney general's office issued a release July 18 that announced completion of the final version of a report by the University of Illinois at Chicago School of Public Health found that no risk to public health exists at the park.

Exposure to ACM can result in mesothelioma, a form of cancer that is almost always fatal.

Bradley said the report's purpose was not to determine public health risk, but to evaluate the asbestos levels of sand that might be used to fill in the shoreline in areas where erosion had occurred.

Bradley pointed to activity-based sampling, which ATSDR began at the beach in May and will finish in August, as "a more appropriate measure of exposure than data in the report."

'[]] firmly believe it will be useful to get that information about the relative risk to people at the beaches," Bradley said.

 This is the last article in a six-part series examining asbestos contamination at Illinois Beach State Park.

When readers ask why the Journal didn't report certain stories, the answer is usually the same:

We didn't know about it.

As this newspaper – with its 10 separate editions – looks for news and features, we are limited.

While Lake County's population nears 700,000 people, we have seven news reporters.

That's a bad ratio, but a reality in a

We do the best we can tracking down leads from calls and e-mails, as well as developing stories from attending events and interviewing people.

But we need the help of readers, whose collective eyes and ears will always see and hear far more than our staff can.

We got some help this week from a Round Lake Beach resident who has some questions – 19, to be exact. Curious about "Why?" things are as they are in her community, she sent a letter with 19 specific ideas for stories in the Journal.

We appreciate the help.

Do you have questions about things in your community? Maybe we can find the answers.

Not just a lazy day on the lake The honors

Antioch man's passion for fishing turns to business, prizes

By TARA CLIFTON

tclifton@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH - Fishing can be an extremely primal activity, said Dan Keating.

"It's you against nature in a way," Keating said. "You can't see the fish, but you have to find them."

And for Keating, it isn't a matter of sitting around and waiting for a fish to bite. It's a hunt; setting a trap and capturing prey.

His specialty is catching salmon and trout.

Captain Dan Keating of Blue Horizon Sport Fishing in Winthrop Harbor has made fishing an art, and he gets joy from sharing his techniques.

With 30 years of fishing behind him, Keating has won dozens of world-renowned tournaments, including the Bob Uecker Great Lakes Invitational, Salmon-a-Rama, Waukegan Salmon Classic Jackpot and more.

Keating, field editor of Great Lakes Angler Magazine, runs a charter boat that takes six people at a time on fishing trips, which last hours. They never go home empty handed.

And in his spare time, when he has it, Keating writes and teaches. Oh, and he happened to find some minutes to write two instructional fishing books, both self-published: "Keating on Kings: Great Lakes Chinook Tactics Way Beyond the Basics," and "Great Lakes Salmon and Trout Fishing: The Complete Troller's Guide."

One might think that his wife, Mary, might be sick of fish and all things fish-related. But quite the opposite is true.

Their four children, aged 9, 6, 3 and 10 months, have already gotten their hands wet with the Mary speaks of Dan's accomplishments with a glowing smile, and tells stories of their fishing trips together.

She often speaks of things Dan is too quiet to leave out, such as how people often fly across the country just to fish on his boat, and celebrities like Bo Jackson have taken lessons from him.

"He's so humble," Mary said, chuckling.

Actually, fishing sort of brought Mary and Dan together.

Dan said his two grandfathers taught him how to fish in the rivers of central Iowa, which is where the fishing bait hooked him.

Mary said her family always took fishing trips when she was younger. Later on, Mary's best friend's brother, Dan, traveled with them, and that is how the couple came to know one another.

And now, Mary and Dan take their family on fishing trips as often as possible in places like the Cayman Islands and Bali.

They always have plenty to bring home for dinner, but Mary will opt out if its salmon on the table.

"I don't eat salmon," Mary said, laughing while she looked at her husband.

Dan just smiled back.

District 117 purchase sparks debate

By TARA CLIFTON tclifton@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH - Some people became upset after learning that School District 117 closed a deal July 7 on roughly 42 acres of land that might one day house a new high school.

Especially the people who live on or near that land.

"We are neighbors of this property and are not very happy about it," wrote Patti Robinson in an e-mail. "[The land] is rural estates with everyone on 5, 10 and 20 acres. Not what we all want coming in the horse neighborhood. And we all thought these were friends. I guess money talks."

The parcel is located at 18752 Edwards Road, just west of Crawford Road, and the purchase came after nearly two years of hunting and at a price of $1.75 million.

According to a copy of the final purchaser's closing statement, the land belonged to Mary T. and James P. Matz, successor trustees of the Sylvia J. Matz Trust.

Trustee's vote delays ordinance

By TARA CLIFTON

tclifton@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH - Village trustees are expected to approve next week an appropriation ordinance for the fiscal year that started May 1 and will end April 30, 2007.

But many trustees wanted to pass the ordinance much sooner.

Officials first discussed the ordinance July 17 during a public hearing. The ordinance details the distribution of $27,955,908 for various village purposes.

Many of the trustees planned on approving the ordinance during the regular village board meeting that followed the hearing, counting that hearing as the ordinance's first reading.

A motion to waive all readings of the ordinance and approve it, though, changed those plans.

Trustee Robert Caulfield was the lone vote against the motion, forcing trustees to schedule a special meeting to discuss the appropriation ordi-

The special meeting is set for 6:30 p.m. July 25 at village hall. The standing committees meeting will follow immediately.

Trustees must publicly read an ordinance before it is passed, unless those readings are waived by a majority vote, said Rudolph Magna, village attorney. The vote must be unan-

Caulfield said he felt uneasy about counting the public hearing as the ordinance's first reading and waiving all the readings of a document, which represents so much of taxpayers' money.

Trustee Mary Turner expressed frustration during the village meeting Caulfield's vote. She reminded the group that the ordinance must be passed by the end of the month in accordance with state law.

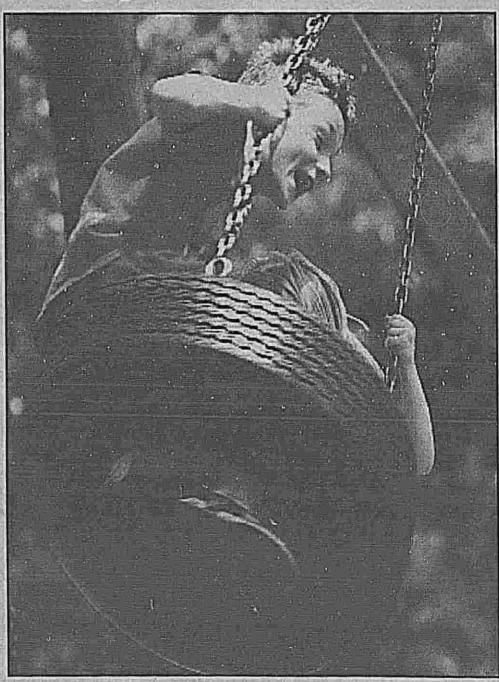

Caulfield countered that he did not want to pass the ordinance unless it was read thoroughly and the public understood its content.

The ordinance appropriates money for village departments' expenses. The Antioch Fire Department, for example, is slated to receive $669,000 while the parks and recreation department will get $604,764.

administration, Village which includes personnel salaries and public garbarge services. will be given $1,402,272.

Those who are interested in seeing the entire appropriation ordinance can contact village hall at (847) 395-1000.

District 117 president's words brought into question

• LAND

Mary and James Matz could not be reached for comment.

The property is in a quiet setting, with an old barn, a pond, a thick-wooded area and several homes.

Phil Delaney, school board president, said no unique native species of plants or animals live in the area, but the Illinois Department of Natural Resources could not be reached to confirm this.

Some people said they just can't imagine a high school being there.

However, Delaney said another 10 to 15 years will pass before ground is even broken. Officials are just preparing for expected population increases, he said.

During last week's school board meeting, Sabatino and Delaney tried to ease the concerns of about 20 people who gathered in front of the board that night.

"We've been looking and talking to people for a year and a half," Sabatino told the audi-

The properties they looked at were either too expensive or their requests were ignored.

Even if the land cannot be built upon, Delaney said, he is still glad the district has this property in its pocket for other needs that could arise.

But if officials can find another piece of land that would be better for a high school, Delaney said he is more than happy to learn about it.

"We'd be open to folks out there who can help us," Delaney said.

Christina Rush, co-presithe Newport of Environmental Action Team, said she wonders if district officials really do want help and said their actions are highly suspect.

"Why on earth are they happy with this purchase?" Rush said. "This is not making any sense no matter how you look at it."

Rush said she called Delaney several weeks ago to tell him her concerns, and she said he did not seem to care.

One point of irritation, Rush said, was that Delaney did not know the land is in Newport Township, located in Russell on the outskirts of Antioch.

She said she also is worried about taxpayer expenses if a school does go up. Rush said the Edwards Road land is narrow, heavily treed with wetlands and has several structures upon it.

> Eriksson Engineering

Associates, based out of Grayslake, conducted soil tests on the land and determined it could hold a school, but in its preliminary report the firm strongly recommended that one of its engineers be on site during construction to closely monitor soil conditions to ensure the earth could hold support beams and foundation.

Rush said she hopes enough residents will speak out to prevent this project from moving forward, which might be the only way, she said, to get officials to pay attention.

"They're not listening," Rush said. "And they're not being reasonable."

Music, food fill Antioch's Summertest

ANTIOCH - Four days of pigging out and jamming to bands will mark Antioch's 2006 Summerfest.

Scott Dogs, Golden Panda, Oliverii North, Grande Jakes and others will offer their fare from booths that will dot the downtown area.

The festival runs roughly from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. on July 20 to 23. Sidewalk sales at various businesses run all day during the event.

Bands such as American English, BBI Live and the Holly Staiton band will play afternoons and evenings.

Heat-related calls less than expected

Officials site education, awareness

By TARA CLIFTON

tclifton@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH - Despite climbing temperatures and sweltering humidity, Antioch and Lake Villa rescue officials said the number of heat-related calls received has been about average for this time of year.

Antioch Rescue Squad Chief Wayne Sobczak said only one heat-related emergency was reported last week.

"It's far less than what we expected," Sobczak said.

The call came from an elderly man who lived alone.

"It just finally got to him," Sobczak said.

Sobczak said he believes more people are heeding the warnings issued from the media and other sources.

Late last month the Antioch Fire Department distributed tips on how to keep cool and the warning signs of heat exhaustion and other illnesses.

The Lake Villa Rescue Squad, which also services Lindenhurst, responded to two heat-related calls last week, said Chief J.R. Halek.

Halek said he suspects that more people might need help this weekend, but hopes that won't be the case.

"Most people are getting smarter about keeping their air conditioners on and staying inside," Halek said.

Temperatures ranged from the high 80s to the mid-90s last week, and the National Weather Service Web site predicted highs of 84 for July 22 and 23.

During heat waves, residents should increase their fluid intake, preferably water and juice, according to the National Weather Service.

Staying in air-conditioned spaces is recommended, as is limiting physical activity. A close eye should be kept on the elderly, as they are more susceptible to heat related illnesses.

Route 83 corridor study sent to village

By JESSICA JACOBSEN jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH - Even though it was Tom Baba's last night as a board member with the Antioch Village Planning, Zoning and Building Commission it didn't stop him from looking out for the residents.

The board agreed July 13 to send the detailed oute 83 and downtown corridor study to the village board, but before they could, Baba questioned what an approval of this study would Baba's main concern with the study was whether it would be able to be amended later on if adopted and if changes needed to be made.

"It is a guideline, by which other decisions can be made," said Bob Silhan, director of planning, zoning and building.

The study compiled research , hall to discuss the study.

that was funded $80,000 by a federal grant, $10,000 by the state and $17,000 by the village to determine areas of improvement for Antioch.

Areas of concern were alternatives for the Pittman block and whether to preserve the downtown area or introduce more commerce.

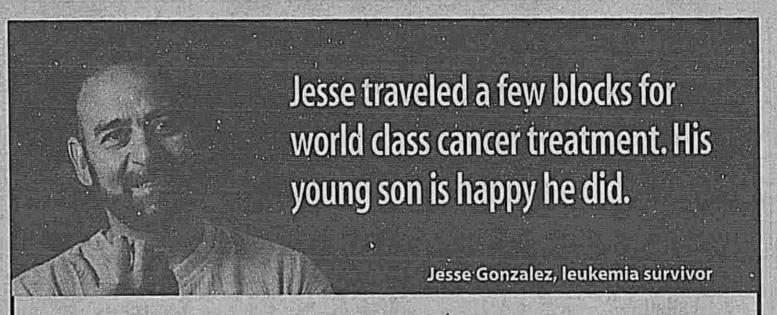

A concern of Chairman Vern Burdick was the little feedback that the board has heard from resisdence regarding the study.

Even with the little feedback the board still moved to approve the study, which Silhan was pleased about.

"I felt that they might come to a conclusion and they did," Silhan said.

The study can be viewed online at the village Web site and at the Antioch Public library.

A special meeting will meet Thursday July 27 at the village

Jesse fell off a ladder, got a scan, and accidentally found out he had leukemia. Fortunately for Jesse, some of the best care in the world was right in his hometown.

When radiation did not help, he underwent a bone marrow transplant. During the 45 days he was in the hospital, spiritual care was as important to him as the leading-edge treatment itself. And nutritional counseling helped him completely renovate his diet.

Two years later, at 52, he can't quite keep up with his nine-year-old son, but he is happy to be around to watch him grow up.

Isabel Avakian, Personal Banker

"More Than Just A Banker"

Two young girls have savings accounts at State Bank of The Lakes, and have been there many times with their mom. One day their dad took them to open two new CDs at a different bank - his bank - and soon discovered he had made a mistake. His daughters immediately noticed things were different. The bankers ignored them. There wasn't candy or refreshments. And they had to wait and wait. After much pleading from the kids, their dad agreed to go to State Bank of The Lakes. What a difference! They were greeted promptly and courteously by Isabel. She made his kids feel special - like customers, not numbers. Immediately their dad opened two CDs for his daughters and promised to come back again soon ... to open his own accounts.

We invite you to stop in and see for yourself what this family already knows ... State Bank of The Lakes is truly a different, and better banking experience.

18 Month CD Special 5.75% APY'

At State Bank of The Lakes we can offer great rates because we are locally managed. That means we set our rates right here. We don't have to get them approved by a corporate office in another state. And we don't have the overhead that big banks do, so we can pass these savings on to you. So hurry in to any location of State Bank of The Lakes and take advantage of this limited time offer.

 Last week: Kyle Busch won the Lenox 300 because he had a fast car, and when the sun dipped and the laps began to wind down, not very many could say that. A war of attrition? The latest Nextel Cup race at New Hampshire International Speedway was more like a war of contrition. When it was over, most of those in the garage area were sorry: sorry for wrecking someone else, sorry for messing up, sorry for running out of gas and, in some cases, just plain sorry. It wasn't enough to be fast. Nor was it enough not to make mistakes. The drivers who made the mistakes decided this race, and the ones left at the end were those lucky enough not to be on the receiving end of those mistakes. With 50 laps to go, the highest-finishing former New Hampshire winner was eighth-place Jimmie Johnson. With 71 laps remaining, the front four consisted of Clint Bowyer, Elliott Sadler, Jeremy Mayfield and Scott Riggs, none of whom had even come close to winning a race this year. Thus did the race become Busch's for the picking. The comedy of errors forced the race to run eight extra laps. No Cup race has ever gone overtime that long since the rule was implemented in 2004.

Ryan Newman vs. Tony Stewart

These two supposed friends clashed on the track during the Lenox 300, and the result was costly for Stewart, who fell out of the top 10 in Nextel Cup points for the first time since the fourth race of the season. "I've started to learn to race him like he races me," said Stewart, "and he doesn't give anybody a break so I wasn't going to give him a break." Newman's reaction? "He (Stewart) got the raw end of the deal. It didn't do us any favors, but he sure didn't live up to what he preaches."

NASCAR This Week's Monte Dutton gives his take: "Newman said his car was faster and Stewart should've let him go. Stewart said the same thing had been true in reverse earlier, and Newman raced him hard. The two sounded like kids arguing on a playground,"

His drive and determination haven't slowed one bit, and his ability is still at the top of the echelon. It's just a pleasure to be with him."

Martin has slumped a bit, but he's sixth in the points standings, meaning that he still has a competition at season's end. He that has always eluded him.

AYSO's national tournament deemed a success by organizers, participants

By DANIEL J. PATRICK dpatrick@nwnewsgroup.com

Even after America's feeble showing at the World Cup this year, Lake County soccer fans still have plenty to cheer about.

Why? Because it was time for the American Youth Soccer Organization national tournament.

AYSO's tourney works in much the same way as the World Cup or Olympics – only a bit more frequently – with a two-year period between national gatherings.

But rather than cities constantly bidding for a chance to host every tournament, the AYSO rotates between Honolulu and other cities around the country.

This year, it was Lake County's turn.

The 2006 AYSO national tournament was held at the Libertyville and Vernon Hills soccer complexes. All-in-all, the tourney had 189 teams competing from all over the country, and a team even hailed from Trinidad and Tobago.

Even with so many teams, AYSO Venue Director David Keller was impressed with the handling of the tournament, both within the soccer facilities and the communities at large.

"We were very pleased with the way the tournament went," Keller said. "The testament to how well it went are all the happy faces, and we certainly had a lot of those."

Keller was especially happy with the lack of injuries in the tournament. Despite the physical nature of the sport in addition to temperatures consistently in the '90s, only four players were sent to the hospital through the five-day tournament.

Apparently Keller and the AYSO crew did something right as Grayslake U-16 girls coach Carrie Rolseth gave the tournament glowing reviews.

"It was an extremely well-run

Winner faces Waukegan in Final Four at Stevenson

Aided by players from Grant, Carmel and Antioch, the Grayslake squad achieved a first-round bye in the District 10 tournament, then downed the perennial rival Libertyville Bandits, 7-4, on Saturday.

That was just fine for former Grant Bulldog Kyle Kapusta. The pitcher, left fielder and first baseman is a versatile player for Grayslake and is working to refine his skills for Aurora University.

"Kyle is one of the guys whom we can put in just about anywhere and he will come through," Grayslake coach Steve Klock said.

Josh Damore, a 2005 Grayslake
Central grad, is a teammate of Kapusta's at Aurora. He was one of the Rams' top supporters as they made it to the Sweet Sixteen this spring.

"It was

"I was their biggest fan, going to all the games I could," Damore said. "You learn a lot your first year in college. The pitchers have much better off-speed stuff and their fastballs are faster."

Kapusta is back to his starting role as Grayslake battles in the Final Four of the Legion playoffs against Waukegan at Stevenson High.

Kapusta was a relief pitcher this spring at Aurora.

Grayslake downed Lake Forest in the second game in the first round.

"I decided to go to Aurora because they have been winning for 25 years and are always in the top schools in Division III," Kapusta said. "The hardest part was getting up for 5:15 a.m. practices before school started."

He was glad to be back at first base on Saturday, and to have a chance to hit this spring

"It was tough the first couple of games. But I knew with Chadler Kent and Damore back, and a lot of other returners, then we would have a good team," Kapusta said.

Klock was proud Grayslake battled back from a 4-0 deficit in the sweltering heat to gain the win against a team it had split against earlier in the season. Micah Yarbough of Grayslake was the starting and winning pitcher.

Kapusta came through with an RBI single for a 5-4 lead in the fifth. Damore followed suit with a two-run double – a near-homer – for a 7-4 lead.

Libertyville gained an early 3-0 lead on two-run error before an RBI double from Chris Andrews gave the Bandits a four-run cushion.

Despite the loss, Libertyville coach Jim Schnur was pleased with his team's early offense.

"They are a very mature team, with college-age players," Schnur said. "We're very young and we don't have any college-age players."

Libertyville was 9-5 in District 10 play. Earlier in the tournament, Mundelein downed Wauconda, 11-1, via the 10-run rule.

In high school summer playoff ball, Grayslake North suffered a similar fate, falling to Vernon Hills, 10-0, off extrabase hits from Tim Lane, Evan Christensen, Ricky Barranco, Steve Gorski, Nick Mazza and Kevin Henciel.

Warren Camp tennis players shine in Quad-States

Lakes High's Andrew Yopp will have a nice war story when he returns to action this season. Yopp was part of a 28-player contingent from Warren High School's Tennis Camp that tore up the competition in the Quad-States Open, hosted by Augustana College in Rock Island.

Yopp played four matches in the Boys 16 Singles consolation tourney, making it to the finals, but he was upended for the trophy. However, that was just the beginning for the team.

Kristiyan Trukov won the Boys 12 Singles event. He defeated the lowa District's top Boys 12 Singles player, Henry Cilek of Iowa City. Trukov won the final, 6-2, 6-0, and Iost just three games in three matches.

Kristiyan's older brother, Nikola Trukov, finished second in the Boys 14-and-under Singles. Nikola also won three matches on his way to the final, including a 6-4, 6-0 win over No. 2 seed Jonathon O'Leary of Davenport. But Trukov lost to David Dessimone of Bettendorf in the finals.

The Trukov brothers also won trophies for second-place finishes in doubles action. Kristiyan and Jeff Gradner took second in the Boys 12 Doubles. The duo lost in the finals to Cilek and Blake Oetting, lowa City, in a third set tie-breaker. Nikola, teamed with Eric Seiler to finish second in the Boys 14 Doubles. They lost the final to Desimone and Kyle Johnson from East Moline.

WTHS all-state doubles player Andrew Wright teamed with Jon Donnowitz to make it to the finals of the Boys 18 Doubles.
Wright and Donowitz won two matches before falling to the tournament's No. 1 seed.

In singles competition, Wright won two matches, including an upset of the No. 1 seeded Tom Lazenby of Moline before falling in the quarterfinals while Donnowitz took three matches in the Boys 16 singles before falling in the quarterfinals.

Kevin Chan won the consolation of the Boys 18 Singles by winning three consecutive matches after losing his first. Chan and his partner, Joe D'Agostino, advanced to the doubles quarterfinals before falling to the No. 1 seed. D'Agostino had also won two matches in singles before falling in the quarterfinals.

Warren juniors Matt Schlais and Jordan Lenz took a comeback win against No. 3 seeds Austin Meeker and Alex Foley. Meeker was an All-State doubles player this past spring while Foley was a state singles qualifier that won two matches at state.

Outdoor Experience

Lending an ear for all callers

Waterfowling stirs passions like no other segment in the world of the outdoors.

Todd Berg, from the Into the Outdoors Guide Service, is one of the best all-around outdoorsmen that I know of. I asked him what he would choose if he had to limit himself to just one segment of the outdoor world.

I was floored when he said duck hunting would be his choice.

Apparently, Berg's not alone. Last year, I met a goose hunter who booked at least three days a week, at $200 a day, to spend his mornings in the blind of a northern Illinois goose hunting operation for the entire season.

Although the season still is quite a distance away, rabid waterfowlers can satiate their thirst by attending the upcoming Illinois Waterfowlers Alliance Symposium and Duck and Goose Calling Championships.

The event is being held on Saturday and Sunday, July 22 and 23, beginning at 9 a.m. at the Holiday Inn City Centre in Peoria, just off Route 74.

The Illinois Waterfowlers Alliance (IWA) is an organization that has been in existence for over 25 years. IWA's aim is to protect the tradition of waterfowl hunting and to be stewards of the environment.

The Illinois Waterfowlers Alliance Duck and Goose Calling Championships has become one of the world's premier events in the field of bird calling. During the weekend, you'll see the IWA/Avery duck and goose calling championships in four different classes.

The championship calling contests draw the best of the best from all over the country. The list of entrants is a veritable "who's who" of the elite callers. World champions John Stephens (duck calling) and Hunter Grounds (goose calling) both will be in competition, as well. The rest of the field features a cast of dozens of world, state and regional champions as they compete for big prizes.

If you're a duck or goose hunter, you must attend the Illinois Waterfowlers Alliance Symposium and North American Duck and Goose Calling Championships.

Local Teacher Finds Comfort at Signature Flooring

Sue Hodkinson, a local 4th grade teacher recently celebrating her 13th wedding anniversary, went away this summer for a romantic second honeymoon. When she returned, Sue had a wonderful surprise waiting for her.

The entire first floor of her home was covered with an exotic wood floor called "Amendoim" and she had carpeting installed in the basement. When asked how she liked it, her reply was "I can't wait to have all my friends come over to see it. It looks just great! I couldn't even tell there were installers here. They left my home spotless. It was great to be able to trust Signature Flooring to work in my house while we were gone...the installers even called me at the airport just before we left to confirm the look I wanted with the wood. We came home to basically a new house!

"They removed all our old floors, moved all of my furniture and even installed fresh painted new trim around the walls. I can't tell you how happy I am! I never felt uncomfortable with Megan, she is great, I feel we have become friends and I want to take her to lunch soon.

"You know when you see a little flooring store the first thing you think is expensive, that was not the case at all with them. They were very competitive in price!"

Sue plans to continue to teach and enjoy her new floors for many years to come. She stated, "Without question, I would recommend SignatureFlooring to everyone I know! Feel free to use me as a referral!"

ANYONE CAN OFFER YOU A CHEAP PRICE, BUT CAN THEY BACK IT UP WITH GREAT SERVICE TOO?

"Just call our store nearest you for a current referral list. I'm sure we have installed for someone you know or lives near you. You're going to love your new floor...you have my 'Signature' on it." - Megan Willer, Owner.

NU's McMahon lets his bat do the talking

Between his sophomore and junior seasons, Northwestern catcher Pat McMahon suffered the biggest obstacle in his baseball career.

The Carmel graduate needed Tommy John surgery and missed an entire season of baseball.

But through rehabbing and changing his approach to the game, McMahon proved to be one of the Wildcats' most valuable hitters ever, resulting in back-to-back Big Ten First Team honors to cap off his collegiate career.

"It's definitely been hard. When I had the surgery, that was a tough time," McMahon said. "I tried my heart out. Actually, I became a lot better hitter because of it."

In the summer of 2003, McMahon was playing in the Chicago Suburban Baseball League, which is a wooden bat, semi-pro league. In between innings of one game, the right-handed McMahon was catching and threw the ball to second base following warm-ups.

He felt a pop in his elbow. It wasn't the first time he felt arm discomfort, but it was the most serious injury he had to overcome.

"I had a whole lot of arm problems in high school," McMahon said. "I did play the whole summer after my senior year [at Carmel], but the elbow was bothering me going into my first fall at Northwestern."

In preparation for his return to the Wildcats' lineup, McMahon shifted from catching to first base and designated hitter. Because he had to limit his throwing, McMahon focused primarily on his bat.

"The whole time, you can only throw every other day, and the throws were only 15 feet," McMahon said about his Tommy John surgery rehab. "It was kind of ridiculous.

"I kind of just picked up my hitting a lot. It turned me into a real good hitter."

During his junior season, McMahon put together one of the most memorable offensive performances in Northwestern history.

McMahon posted a .400 average (82-for-205), scoring 44 runs, driving in 33 and hitting six homers. He became the first person since current Boston Red Sox second baseman Mark Loretta to hit .400 for Northwestern. Loretta hit .408 in 1993.

Only five Wildcats have hit .400 or better for an entire season.

Though that season was a tough act to follow, McMahon had no problems putting together a stellar senior campaign. And the team had one of its most accomplished seasons, as well.

McMahon hit .333 with five home runs and 41 RBIs. His biggest highlight came April 14 at Illinois when he hit for the cycle in a crazy 19-18 victory.

McMahon was named coplayer of the week in the Big Ten following his two-homer, 5-for-6 performance. He drove in six runs.

"It was a really windy day. The flag in center field was blowing real hard," McMahon said. "We got behind in the first inning, [down 7-1], and I was telling my teammates that we were going to be in this game if we just keep plugging away.

"I knew there would be a lot of hits."

McMahon, certainly not known as a speed demon, took advantage of the Illini's defensive setup to cash in his double and triple.

"They were playing me shifted to the left," McMahon said. "I hit my double and triple to the right-field corner. I was fortunate they were shifting me to the left."

McMahon became just the third Wildcat to hit for the cycle. And the win gave Northwestern sole possession of first place in the Big Ten with a 7-2 conference mark.

Though the Wildcats could not hang onto their first-place record, they did manage a 21-11 season in the Big Ten. It was the first time Northwestern had over 20 wins in the conference.

This past school year was one for the books for the Wildcats. The women's lacrosse team won its second straight national title. The softball squad reached the championship series. And the volleyball team picked up its first NCAA Tournament win, just to name a few standout performances.

The baseball team has a chance to continue improving and adding to the Wildcats' athletic accomplishments. The baseball squad graduated just five players, and Carmel graduate and starting pitcher Ryan Myers will be back for his final season.

"It's been pretty cool the last few years," McMahon said. "The confidence level carries over from team to team, and we pull for each other."

One setback of McMahon's injury has been his opportunity to play beyond college. The Carmel alum was hoping to get drafted. Two of his Wildcat teammates were – pitchers George Kontos and Dan Brauer – but McMahon did not get his shot.

Though he was disappointed, McMahon certainly is not giving up at the possibility of playing ball beyond Northwestern's walls.

"I'd like to play
Independent [League] ball, but their season's halfway done," McMahon said. "I'm going to stick around other major league tryouts, and I may try out in the outfield. I'm hoping that my bat can get me into the lineup."

If his final two seasons at Northwestern are any indication, his bat will supply plenty.

Dog days of winter?

If there's a word that can sum up the last week or so, it's "Hot."

I know that's quite the groundbreaking revelation, but I certainly haven't envied the American Legion baseball players during the playoffs because of the sweltering heat.

But right in the middle of one of the hottest stretches in the summer, I get an e-mail about the last topic I would ever expect – Wauconda's Winter Thunder Challenge.

It may be 90 degrees outside, and the WTC may have hosted their own "Summer Sucks Party" in April, but the snowmobiling group insists, "It's time to start firing up for the 2006/2007 season and get the ice running through our veins."

Daniel J. Patrick

While
most of us stand a better chance of having sun screen running through, the WTC
crew's snowmobiling season begins Aug. 12 as they will host the Central Ontario
Snowmobile Drag Racing Association's (COSDRA) first race in the Can-Am Super Series.

No, your eyes do not deceive you. WTC's first racing event is scheduled for the middle of August and organizers expect more than 500 racers.

August, the time when people should still be waxing their convertibles, apparently is the time when snocross enthusiasts should breaking out the Carnuba for the ol' snowmobile as well.

You can probably imagine how surprised – dumbfounded might be a better word – I was to receive this announcement. However, when I gave it a closer look, WTC's snowmobile ramped right from La-La Land into reality.

The biggest obstacle facing the WTC would have to be the snow. During last February's Winter Thunder Challenge, race organizers had to deal with unseasonably warm weather, forcing them to bring in snow machines that still couldn't quite contend with 50- to 60-plus degree temperatures. Add 25 degrees to that situation, and you've got August.

However, snowmobiles, despite that pesky "snow" in the name, do not need the white stuff to run. COSDRA head Kris Bedard said the snowmobiles run on a 500-foot grass dragway with a clay starting line.

The clay is used so the spikes in the snowmobiles' track (think of the tracks of a tank or a belt sander here) have a better surface to dig into, rocketing the snowmobiles down the course.

Have you ever wondered why drag racers always burn out before a race? The burnout principle is the same as snowmobiling's clay strip as more traction makes for a faster launch.

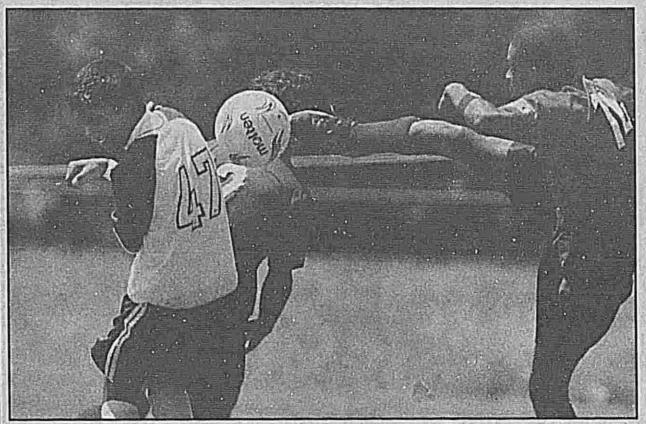

COSDRA has a bit of a noble cause as well. Much like many drag racing tracks around the country, COSDRA is trying to cut down on unsafe, unsanctioned field racing by hosting legitimate racing events for all racers to enjoy in a safe environment.

"We are fully covered by the [International Snowmobile Racing], and there are plenty of safe amateur events for everyone," Bedard said. "People should come on out and have some fun and watch some good racing."

I know one thing ... With temperatures like these, I could definitely use a little ice running through my veins.

tournament and I think it was the most fabulous soccer tournament in the world," Rolseth said. "It reestablished the players' interest in the game. I had five players that weren't going to play in the fall, but now after the tourney, they've joined the team."

Great experience

Numbers-wise, Lake County boys had quite a difficult time in their own tournament. Both the Mundelein U-16 and Grayslake U-19 teams combined for only one win in 10 tries. However, according to the coaches, the benefits of competing against players from all over the world far outweigh fleeting numbers on the field.

"The kids had fun and we finished 0-3-2, but that's not important," Grayslake U-19 coach Mike Crouse said. "It was the experience that they were there for. They went back during the finals and exchanged phone numbers with some of the other players and made some friends, and that's the whole point of the tournament."

With almost 3,000 different players spread over just eight different classes, talent was by no means a rare commodity. Mundelein's squad had the competitive deck stacked against them from the beginning, with eventual U-16 tourney winners Honolulu and West Palm Beach, Fla., in their starting pool.

Despite compiling just a 1-4 record in the tourney, team coach William Andre was pleased with his team's growth.

"I think they learned a lot

While Mundelein's lone entry had a tough time on the playing field, the team represented Lake County with pride, winning the U-16 sportsmanship award after the tournament."

"I was surprised by the level of the competition, but that's inspired me to work harder as a coach so we can be competitive at other tournaments," Andre said. "But I was proud of the way our kids carried themselves. It's an experience the kids will be able to hold onto for the rest of their lives."

Lake County girls fared better, with Grayslake's U-16 team finishing in the top half of the tournaments' entrants with a 2-3 pool record. Just as the boys teams, Rolseth's squad was forced to play at a higher level.

"With the competition from California and Hawaii, they certainly did step up to be able to compete with some great teams," Rolseth said. "They gave 100 percent every play because they needed to, and as a coach, that's nice to see."

Labor of love

Last week's tournament was the culmination of two years of work with the AYSO and the Lake County community at large. It may have taken a long time for organizers, but it was worth it.

"We first received approval in late 2004, almost two years ago, and the group that put it all together worked tirelessly over that time." Keller said. "Libertyville and Vernon Hills were chosen because they had good enough facilities. But just as important was the town's infrastructure."

Volunteers director Tammy Carlson estimated that 200 people gave their time each day to the tournament. Area companies also gave to the cause as Athletico provided care for injured players throughout the event.

"It was two years of planning, but I can't believe it's over," Carlson said. "But it was worth every minute of it ... Both Vernon Hills and Libertyville welcomed us with open arms, and it was such a good experience."

Lakers drop heartbreaker in IBL tourney

Just one point - one point is all it takes to win in any game.

Chism's Lake Shawn County Lakers learned that the hard way, losing 140-139 to the Lansing (Mich.) Capitals in their first International Basketball League tournament.

Chism, the former College of Lake County men's basketball coach, has been fighting all season long with an everchanging roster, but lost in a playoff contest that went down to the final seconds. The game followed the IBL's philosophy of a high-scoring, high energy game, as both teams combined for 279 points of offense.

Lansing featured a diverse squad with multiple scorers. The Capitals had five players with 18 or more points, while the Lakers relied heavily on the offensive talents of Ryan Edwards (38), Ameer Watts (32) and Tony Murdock (25).

Lansing was led by Jason Franklin with 32 points, while Steve Ordiway and Rod Hannibal chipped in 25 apiece.

With the loss, Lake County ends its first season in the IBL at 2-14 overall.

Despite the heartbreaker, ment after the game.

there was some good news in the Laker camp as Lake star swingman County's Edwards won the IBL slam dunk competition. The dunk contest.

ESPN's SportsCenter segment grants 'My Wish'

It usually isn't hard to find reasons to cry while watching "SportsCenter."

The problem is, we're usually crying for all the wrong reasons. Steroids are mentioned more than shutouts and saves. A soccer star turns his head into a battering ram. Chris Berman continues to use a shtick created when Reagan was in office.

But what about that type of cry that lets you find tears seeping from the corners of your eyes at the end of a segment? .

The type that leaves you happy, hopeful and content the world is more than just tsunamis and terrorists? Yeah, "SportsCenter" has that, too.

For two weeks, at least. If you're not watching the show's "My Wish" features, you're missing out on the network's most compelling television since the "SportsCentury" biographies.

Kevin Kaduk

Each day through this week, a different participant from the Make-A-Wish program took a trip to meet his or her favorite athlete. ESPN taped 10 of these meetings and has been airing them during its signature show.

So far, we've witnessed scenes such as Charlie calling plays for the Philadelphia Eagles, Katie taking her Little League team to Safeco Field and Johnny revving engines with Jeff Gordon.

Then there is the game of H-O-R-S-E with Kobe Bryant, video games with Tracy McGrady and a skate with Wayne Gretzky.

The common thread among all the participants is that they're fighting life-threatening medical conditions.

And darned if the room didn't get a bit dusty last Thursday morning when I watched Andrew Geracoulis, a 6-year-old Patriots fan, rattle off Super Bowl scores before meeting his idol, linebacker Tedy Bruschi.

Both have battled heart problems, and it didn't take too long to see the two shared a special connection.

And when Bruschi quietly gave Andrew a game ball he had earned during a playoff game?

Let's just say I thought Gale Sayers had taken the podium in "Brian's Song."

"We've had a week of making a lot of grown men cry," said Stephanie Druley, the series' coordinating producer. "That wasn't our intention, but you get so wrapped up in the kids and their stories. It's hard not to."

Admittedly, I was a bit skeptical when the commercials for "My Wish" began airing. After all, ESPN is the network that gave us "Bonds on Bonds" and 'round the clock reports from Terrell Owens' driveway.

To say ESPN overhypes its product is to say KFC sells chicken. How did we know these stories wouldn't be self-serving to the network and the athletes involved?

That notion quickly disappeared with the first airing. There's no doubt as to who the stars are: the kids and their tales of overcoming the challenges they've been dealt.

The athletes are mere props: seen, but rarely heard.

Sure, it's the presence of the athletes that elicit the reactions from the children. But it's the huge smiles and shared high-fives that give the stories their depth.

By airing these profiles, ESPN is making the day of not just the children, but the millions who are watching.

"The athletes do this all the time without cameras around," Druley points out. "It's a cool window into an experience that we normally don't get to see."

There's only one downside of the whole series: No Chicago athletes were portrayed.

But members from the Bears, Bulls, Sox, Cubs and Blackhawks have granted their fair share of wishes.

Michael Jordan recently was honored by the local Make-A-Wish chapter on its 20th anniversary. Still one of the most requested athletes, Jordan usually throws a party in a hotel ballroom and then spends individual time with about 10 or 15 wishers.

Recent sports requests in Chicago have included throwing out the first pitch at Wrigley Field, season tickets for the White Sox and trips to Wrestlemania at Allstate Arena last April.

The ESPN features figure to increase interest in the program, which thrills Jessica Miller, spokesperson for the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Illinois.

"We get covered a lot in regular newspapers and magazines, but we never get a big feature in the sports section," Miller said. "We're reaching a different audience."

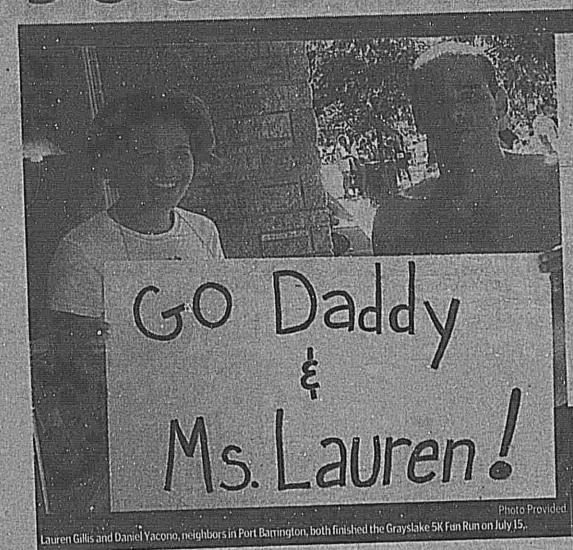

There's also one other big byproduct of the whole effort. Local athletes might want to start clearing their schedules.

"I'm guessing we're going to have a lot more sports wishes now," Miller said.

Bring 'em on.

Nice job, Worldwide Leader.

Creative ideas for kids' spaces

There is an interesting trend occurring these days: Homes are getting larger while families are getting smaller. According to U.S. Census reports, the size of the average family is on a steady decline, from 3.58 members in 1970 to 3.21 in 2000. A number of people are choosing not to have children, and those who do are stopping after the average one or two.

The added space around the home means homeowners can devote entire rooms to kids' play spaces or areas apart from their children's bedroom. There are ways to personalize these spaces and make them kid-friendly.

•Think color: If ever there was a place that can be infused with bold color, it is a child's play area. This room offers the perfect chance to play with primary colors, color blocking or any color combination that suits the fancy. The bright colors will also engage younger children who are often stimulated by strong color and pattern.

· Impart whimsy: There are all sorts of products geared toward embellishing a child's room or play space. From wallsized murals to themed decorative accents, the possibilities for creativity are virtually endless, depending upon budget. For an easy way to dress up a play area, consider this tip:

Visit a local teacher-supply center, which stocks visual and educational signs, pictures and bulletin board decorating materials. These items can be used to add a personal touch to a play space in a short amount of time. Plus, since they're relatively inexpensive, they can be taken down and switched as the children grow older or their interests change.

· Remember scale and space: Don't fill the room to the brim with large pieces of furniture and toys galore. Proportion the scale of play area furnishings to the child who will be using them. Also, leave ample floor space for independent or group play, or for just dancing around to music.

 Invite imagination: While store-bought toys come in a wide range of options for stimulating mental acuity in children, some of the best playthings include items that foster imagination. Fill a toy chest with blocks, old clothes for "costumes," bowls, spoons and any other safe items to encourage creative thinking and play.

Keep kids occupied while traveling

Help the children to stay patient during travel

"Are we there yet?" That's the dreaded question often repeated by children and adults alike when en route to a destination. However, you can avoid avoid hearing a chorus of "are we there yets" and having a group of stir-crazy travelers by factoring in ways to stave off boredom during the long hours on the road, rail or in flight you can

• Keep comfort in mind. It's easy for one to get antsy while traveling, especially when he or she is uncomfortable. Wear 'lightweight clothing that is comfortable for spending long hours in a seated position. Also, don't squeeze in too many passengers. A seat or space for each person is essential for safety, and prevents children from pushing and shoving for the "best" position.

• Schedule breaks. When on a car trip, make plenty of stops to get out and stretch. Visit rest stops for bathroom facilities and a change of scenery. It also breaks up the trip and refreshes the driver. For plane or train travelers, get up and move around when permitted. Getting your circulation flowing once more could refresh you and put you in better spirits.

 Keep occupied. Pack what's necessary to keep travelers' minds off the long trip. Some good ideas are books, personal CD or MP3 players (so the entire isn't group forced to listen to the same tunes), portable movies. or One of the best options is a game that will challenge the mind and keep travelers busy.

Scramble Squares puzzles can do just that. These brain teaser puzzles come in a range of themes including nature, sports, history, culture, geography, science, technology, occupations, fantasy, and more.

And while they're easy to play, they're also challenging to solve.

The puzzles are appropriand up and have been shown to reinforce critical thinking, problem-solving skills, manual dexterity and patience among players.

Packed in a resealable vinyl travel pouch, they're quite practical for bringing along while traveling, and you can buy three or four for about the cost of a tank of gas.

• Refuel ... the body. Hunger pangs can put anyone in a lousy mood. Pack along snacks in plastic bags and containers, which makes them able to be easily enjoyed on the go. But keep them light — you don't want to aggravate a motion-sensitive stomach with heavy or greasy treats. Pretzels, crackers, vegetable sticks and juice boxes are good choices.

Is there a clean diesel in your future? Automotive experts list cool

It's not your father's Oldsmobile. Especially not his Oldsmobile with a diesel engine.

For many American motorists, diesel has long been a dirty word. They see the smoke belching from some trucks. They hear the castanet-like clatter from diesel pickups and some European cars. Some of us remember the debacle of the 1970s and '80s when a domestic diesel engine gave buyers poor performance, at best. They point to the fuel odor and the cloying smell of diesel exhaust.

All of that is about to change.

New, clean diesels

The new generation of clean diesel engines have very little in common with those cantankerous engines of yore except, perhaps, the way the fuel is ignited.

Here's how it works. Air is compressed inside the combustion chamber during the compression stroke of the piston. As the air is compressed, it gets very hot. So hot, in fact, that when fuel is sprayed into the combustion chamber, it ignites.

"In the past, this fuel injection was much sloppier than it is today," notes Jack Pokrzywa, manager of automotive standards for the Society of Automotive Engineers, a prime mover in the development of cleaner, quieter diesel technology, "Nowadays, the fuel is under extremely high pressure and is sprayed directly into the combustion chamber by computer controlled injectors that time the event very precisely. As a result, today's engines make much less noise and burn the fuel far more efficiently. That means clean, quiet operation."

Surveys of motorists, who have driven the new, clean diesels bears this out. In fact, according to J.D. Powers & Associates, consumers rated diesel power and performance in pickup trucks up to 10 percent better and in cars two to five percent better than in vehicles they had driven before.

And, diesels in cars and light trucks will be cleaner than ever with each passing year.

"[T]oday's trucks and buses and some off-road equipment produce 80 percent less particulate matter and nitrogen oxide emissions — a key ingredient in the formation of smog - than those built 10 years ago," said Dave Puglia, California's representative to the Clean Diesel Technology forum held from December 8-9, 2004.

"American carmakers have been offering diesel engines in pickups and sport utility vehicles for several years and the diesel is often the choice for towing. Diesel engines have more pulling power, partly because diesel fuel has more energy content than gasoline. Plus, diesels get better fuel economy," notes SAE's Pokrzywa.

In Western Europe, 51.9 percent of newly registered passenger cars are equipped with diesel engines, primarily due to their fuel economy, according to www.dieselforum.org. Fuel is much more expensive in Europe than it is in the U.S.

Environmental benefits

Diesel engines also reduce carbon dioxide (CO2) emissions by an average of 20 percent because if their exceptional fuel economy.

According to some auto experts, within the next generation we may see up to 30 percent of America's vehicles powered by diesel engines.

"Our new [Jeep Liberty] diesel engine provides the torque of a V-8, the performance of a V-6 and the fuel economy of a fourcylinder. This new technology improves fuel economy an average of 25 percent," said Craig Love, vice president, Rear-Wheel Drive Product Team and Core Team Leader for Jeep.

"The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has issued new standards for diesel fuel, which should become widely available by 2006 under EPA's Tier 2 emissions program. Over the course of the next couple years, sulfur content will continually drop to near zero," SAE's Pokrzywa, said.

The superior fuel economy of the diesel engine, along with lowsulfur fuel, means good news for the environment. Add in the superb fuel economy of the diesel the result is lower carbon dioxide emissions - the main greenhouse gas. Factor in the new engine technology that makes diesels smoother and quieter than ever, and the bottom line is that there may very well be a clean diesel in your future.

The Society of Automotive Engineers, celebrating its 100th anniversary in 2005, is the largest technical association of mobility engineers in the world. For 100 years, SAE has developed standards and propelled technology that has advanced all forms of transportation. For more information on SAE, visit www.sae.org.

new rides under $18,000

(NAPSI)-With the average price of a new vehicle passing $25,000, it's easy to fall into the trap of believing you have to spend a small fortune to drive anything worth writing home about. Unless you're all about impressing your friends, neighbors and co-commuters with the size of your monthly payment, the entry end of the market is filled with a higher concentration of cool cars, trucks and SUVs than ever.

After putting together a list of all the vehicles available for less than $18,000, the editors of Kelley Blue Book's kbb.com then picked the 10 coolest. Instead of reporting based on vehicles' Manufacturer's Suggested Retail' Prices (MSRPs), the list is based on each model's New Car Blue Book value, the price buyers are typically paying in the market. Your actual payment will be determined by the down payment on the vehicle and the finance rate.

The Top 10 Coolest New Cars Under $18.000

 Toyota Yaris-With a long history as a best-seller in Europe, the Toyota Yaris migrates to the U.S. as the least expensive vehicle in the Toyota lineup. Sporting unusually cool styling, Toyota quality and a 34/city and 40/highway MPG rating, the Yaris' value more than exceeds its under-$12,000 starting price.

 Scion xB-The xB has proven to us that, these days, it's cool to be square. Not only does its slab-sided styling set it apart, but its boxy dimensions also mean this diminutive and fuel-efficient vehicle is a surprisingly commodious hauler of people and stuff.

 Dodge Caliber-Caliber changes the small-car game by offering a larger, more flexible interior filled with way-cool features like an air-conditioned storage bin to keep drinks cold, rear speakers that flip down to project outward from the open tailgate, a 110-volt outlet for powering small electronics and a self-charging flashlight.

 Kia Sportage-When buying your first SUV, bang-for-thebuck is a very cool thing to find. Pricing out the Kia Sportage is almost fun when you get to include a sunroof, a great stereo and a tire pressure monitor all for under $16,500.

 Chevrolet HHR-As cool as the 1940s-style exterior is, the Chevrolet HHR is equally cool for its efficient use of space and worthwhile features like remote start and the increasingly requisite iPod connector. It offers hauling ability like a compact SUV, yet it handles like a car.

· Ford Fusion-Size does matter, so getting a well-styled, contemporary midsize sedan with the roominess and comfort of the new Fusion is cool. Even better is the unexpected level of equipment for the price, including remote keyless entry, tilt steering wheel and cruise control.

· Nissan Frontier-Utility is in, and nothing's more utilitarian than a pickup. The Frontier backs up its sharp styling with excellent ride and handling.

 Mazda3-Available as a hatchback or sedan, the Mazda3 is a deft one-two punch to the compact-car segment. We can't decide which model we like better, but the combination of fine driving dynamics, upscale interior and arresting looks make this a "cool cars" list repeater.

 Honda Civic-You know how U2 were cool, then in the mid-90s they weren't so ccol, and now they're as cool as ever? Well, the Civic has traveled a parallel path to regain its stature as arguably the finest economy car ever built-and cool once again.

· Scion tC-If you're cool enough to appreciate it, the slick styling and fashionable features in the tC deliver Lexuslike technology in an affordable package. This year, the improved audio features stand out, including steering-wheel gauges and iPod connectivity.

For more information on these and other new or used vehicles, vehicle purchasing advice and more, visit Kelley Blue Book's Web site www.kbb.com.

There's no denying the allure of the flawless, warranted, inimitably scented new car.

Superior fuel economy of the diesel engine in heavy duty trucks, along with low-sulfur fuel, means good news for the environment.

Lake County fair stays true to roots, updates offerings

> By EMILY PREVITI epreviti@nwnewsgroup.com

GRAYSLAKE - A mid-afternoon drive through the Lake County Fairgrounds typically kicks up dust and little else. But starting July 25, these grounds will swarm with people kicking up their heels at the Lake County Fair.

For the past 150 years, the fair has served up scrumptious food, livestock for auction, as well as crafts, action sports and a host of other activities.

William Obenauf is the Director of the Lake County Fair Association, which he said works year-round to organize the event.

'[It] started out ... as a place for farmers to display their wares," he said.

The event has developed, according to Obenauf, into an agricultural education of sorts, to "help city folks understand."

Peter Tekampe, treasurer of the association, said that component has diminished as the fair strives to attract attendees. Yearly crowds total about 200,000 people, all of whom gravitate toward "spectatorfriendly" stuff like the demolition derby, the motocross and the tractor pull.

"It's not like 35 years ago, when I started pulling in the Mary McClure, 14, of Grayslake, said she gained appreciation for the agricultural aspect of the fair last year, when she participated in - and won - the Junior Miss Lake County Fair Queen pageant.

The young women compete for scholarships: $350 for Little Miss (ages 6 to 9), $500 for Junior Miss (ages 11 to 14) and $2,000 for Miss (ages 16 to 21), plus $1,000 from Ray Chevrolet of Fox Lake and Raymond Chevrolet-Oldsmobile Antioch.

Last year, the queens appeared in about five parades and at the association's Christmas party, but focus on hosting the fair, according to McClure, who won will start as freshman at Carmel Catholic High School in the fall.

Wiggles ready to perform at Rosemont

Preschool band entertains children

ROSEMONT - Back on stage with an all-new live concert tour, the Wiggles will wiggle their way into Rosemont this August.

"Wiggledancing" will begin at 1:30 p.m. and 5 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 12, and Sunday, Aug. 13, at the Allstate Arena.

Wiggles' friends Captain Feathersword, Dorothy the Dinosaur, Wags the Dog and Henry the Octopus also will be on stage.

The Wiggles began their journey toward becoming one of the world's most well-known preschool bands in Australia. They are now an international sensation, celebrating their 15th anniversary.

Tickets for the Rosemont shows are now on sale and can be purchased at www.ticketmaster.com.

Prices range from $17.50 to

Seating for tickets purchased at the $35 level will take place in the "hot potato seats" and will include an exclusive peel 'n' stick Wiggles game.

About the Wiggles

In 2005, the Wiggles performed more than 150 shows in front of an estimated 700,000 fans in the United States.

 On stage, the Wiggles integrate their experience in early childhood education with creativity and interaction, which results in a dynamic combination of live action and audience participation - all with help from a variety of costumed characters.

The show airs on Disney.

The power of love

It hit me the other day. Motherhood has finally taken over.

It has altered my IQ, my voice, my vocabulary and my figure. I think it has even changed my hair, which steadily has gotten shorter, straighter, darker and grayer with every child.

I'm not fighting it. It's just too powerful. It starts out making you sick, then huge and then, as if that's not enough, it sprawls you out on a table and zaps all your dignity. (Does the janitor want to come in and see how far I'm dilated?)

It leaves you blurryeyed, weak and full of fear that you'll never really live up to its potential.

beat you down, motherhood keeps you coming back for more. That's what gives it its strength. It draws you in like a bug entranced by one of those lighted bug zappers.

Jami Kunzer

To keep from completely draining you, it throws you perks here and there, including certain inalienable rights and abilities.

You become the keeper and the finder of all things - shoes, toys, food (most of which already has been chewed).

You inherit "mom spit," which can smooth hair and clean faces. Some say it can even take the grease off of a carburetor, if need be. Your kisses suddenly have the ability to cure just about any ailment.

Your sense of smell intensifies, allowing you to sniff out a dirty diaper from across the room. More experienced mothers can even predict a dirty diaper before it happens.

And you develop an inner clock that determines nap time, bedtime, any mealtime and the second before your child is about to cry in the middle of the night.

You also know just how many more bites are needed before a meal is over, and you know when bites are too big and must be spit back out. With a couple poofs of air, you can make any food cooler just by blowing on it.

Your hearing improves. In the midst of a deep sleep, you still can hear a door open, footsteps in a hallway or a sneeze. You also automatically know when a silence has stretched out too long, and it's time to go check on your child, who likely has gotten into something she shouldn't have.

Without any formal training or education, you quickly learn "mom vocabulary." You refer to yourself in the first person. "Mommy is going to do the dishes." "Mommy is going to give you a bath." Your husband becomes "Daddy" in all circumstances, and your parents and in-laws automatically become grandma and grandpa.

You begin to add a "y" or "ie" to as many words as possible: mommy, daddy, ouchy, kitty, puppy, horsie, potty, binky, blanky, tubby, uppie, sippy ... I could go on and on.

You repeat certain phrases, such as "Because I said so," "I can't hear myself think" and "Don't make me stop this car," that you swore you wouldn't

I believe mothers even invented the phrases "five-second rule," "inside voice," "mommy time," "time out" and "work it out."

You find yourself saying things you can't believe are actually coming out of your mouth.

"Don't put that in your (insert any bodily orifice here)."

"Yeah, you went poopy in the potty!'

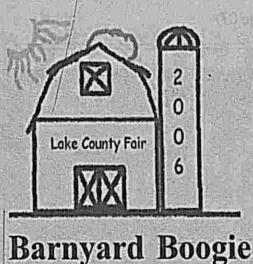

"Did you wipe?"

"Did you flush?" "Are you wearing big girl pants?"

Despite all of these things, some of which can leave you feeling somewhat used, disoriented and exhausted, all it takes is one simple "I love you" to revitalize you all over again.

That's the power of motherhood.

Kathy Voytko, as Angie, and Jim Weitzer, as Vinnie, perform in a scene from "Once Upon a Time in New Jersey."

New musical comes to life onstage in Once Upon a Time in New Jersey?

By TOM WITOM thomaswitom@yahoo.com

Original musicals are a rarity, doubly so on local suburban stages, where producers must weigh hefty production costs and lengthy rehearsal times against an unknown quantity in terms of box office appeal.

That's why a venue such as Marriott Theatre in Lincolnshire generally plays it safe, slating proven Broadway hits, or reviving popular classics. The company's last original musical, "Peggy Sue Got Married," premiered in 1999.

Still, it's a thrill to see a newcomer hit the boards. 'Once Upon a Time in New Jersey" was several years in the making. Susan DiLallo wrote the musical's dialogue and lyrics. The music, a mix of ballads, love songs, novelty tunes and a touch of rock 'n' roll, is the work of Stephen Weiner.

Though the musical comedy follows a predictable story-line, and is peppered with groan-inducing puns, "Jersey" features a battery of talented performers who put forth a tremendous effort and manage to keep the show lively and entertaining.

This was especially true on opening night, when a power surge caused a series of unexpected pops, and the sound system eventually went kaput during the final 10 to 15 minutes.

At times, Marriott's in-theround stage was plunged in darkness. But the cast rose to the challenge, never skipping a beat and completing the last numbers a cappella.

In fact, the duet ("I Always Knew It Was You"/"A Girl Like Her") performed by the two leads, Jim Weitzer as Vinnie, a good-natured bookworm who works at a deli counter with comely assistant Kelly Voytko, as Angie, was even more dramatic without musical accompaniment.

Marc Robin, who directed and choreographed "Jersey," helped capture its 1956 time frame to a T, with just the right mix of nostalgia.

Vinnie is love struck, but too shy be taken seriously by Angie, who finds herself in a swoon over the local hottie. Rocco Fabrizio (Will Swenson). as a pompous, self-indulgent lady-killer.

Celeste (Christine Sherrill) is a dance teacher whose husband (Billy Castiglione) works for the Mob. She likes to walk on the wild side, observing that, "Sex is a great way to get a guy's attention, especially if you do it with someone else." But her fling has Rocco feeling the heat when the brief affair is exposed.

Until things quiet down, Rocco swaps identity with Vinnie, who sees this as his big chance to get the girl of his dreams.

Rounding out the cast are Paula Scrofano, a Marriott veteran, as Vinnie's mother, Scott Aiello and Norm Boucher as Rocco's pals, Cheryl Avery, Liz Baltes and Lara Filip as the groupies, and Michael Accardo as Ed Vendetta, the hit man.

Native American items take center stage, shown to public for first time

Artifacts are on display at Lake County museum

WAUCONDA - More than 100 Native American artifacts, from peace pipes to headdresses, are on display at the Discovery Lake County Museum.

"Native American Art: Designs for Life" will be on open until Aug. 20.

This is the first time the collection of artifacts has been displayed in one exhibit and the first time some of the artifacts have been placed on public display. The museum possessed some of them for decades.

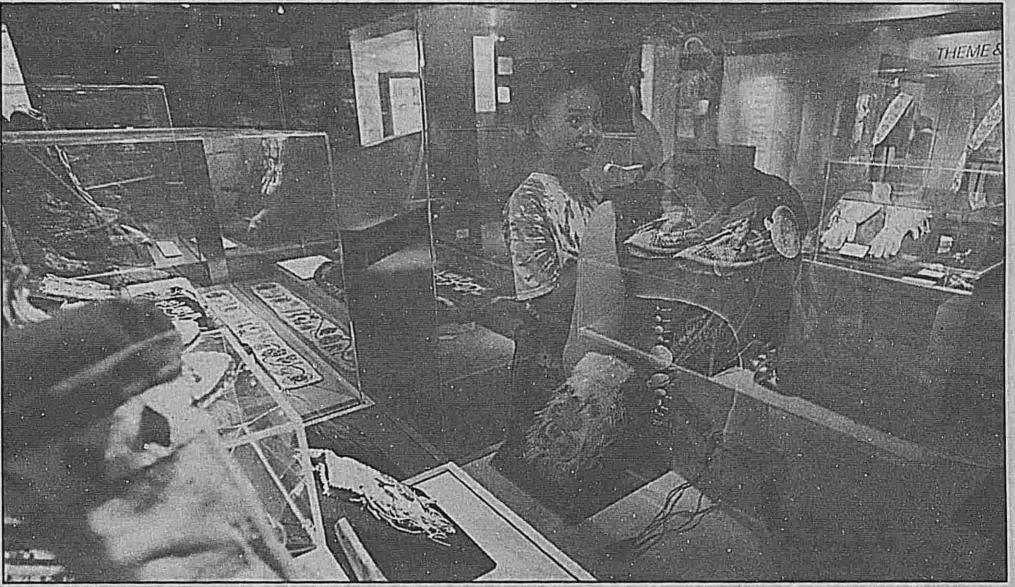

"As I understand it, pipes would be smoked for a number of reasons: for approving a treaty, for the tribal counsel meeting, for any number of times," Diana Dretske, Lake County Discovery Museum collections coordinator, said. "We have done the display so that people can focus on individual things. You can walk into the gallery, see the variety of items, but also appreciate individual items and their artistry."

Dretske said the museum has taken great pains to ensure that any tribal rituals are adhered to.

For example, Pipestone is quarried in a sacred monument in Minnesota and must be handled with respect.

"The only ones who can quarry the stone is Native-Americans," she said. "The legend is that the rock is red because it is red with the blood of their ancestors. [Here] the pieces are separate. Because it is sacred, we are not allowed to put it together. [That is] something that only a tribal person could do in a ceremony."

The exhibit is broken up into sections stressing har-

Friend in need, a pest indeed

Romantic comedy falls short on laughs, viewer expectations

Newlyweds Molly Thompson and Carl Peterson, played by Kate Hudson and Matt Dillon, learn it might not be the best idea to invite their friend Dupree, played by Owen Wilson, into their home.

By PAM AND GEORGE SINGLETON

Newlyweds Molly Thompson and Carl Peterson (Kate Hudson and Matt Dillon) reluctantly open their home for best man Randy Dupree (Owen Wilson) to stay with them for a few days (a week at the most).

While things are going great for Carl, Dupree has fallen on hard times. He's lost not only his job, but his apartment and car as well.

The net result is that he is sleeping on a cot at the local bar and riding a bike for transportation.

Carl is plucked from the pack of the cubed, windowless office masses at the large land development company owned by Molly's father, Mr. Thompson (Michael Douglas). He gets a big promotion and a major project to manage.

Although Thompson is all smiles, Carl starts to figure pops is not exactly pulling for him when he suggests that Carl get a vasectomy and change his name to Carl Peterson-Thompson.

It's evident the filmmakers wanted to recreate the off-thewall success of last year's hit, "Wedding Crashers." But "You, Me and Dupree" doesn't come Dupree is indeed the guest from hell, but the film quickly starts to go into the toilet?in oh so many ways, aside from the obvious potty humor. The subplot dealing with the neighborhood kids begs the question of, "Who is this guy Dupree, and who can possibly stand him?

Oddly enough, there were some ethnic and homophobic remarks that seemed jarringly out of place and totally unnecessary.

Then there was the scene involving, shall we say, selfgratification. Who is the audience for this movie?

The 12-year-old male brains that this would appeal to would have to be ensconced inside a 28-year-old male body in order to buy a ticket.

'Lady in the Water' in need of a lifeline

By PAM AND GEORGE SINGLETON

Cleveland Heep (Academy Award Nominee Paul Giamatti) is an unassuming guy managing an unpretentious apartment complex called The Cove, in Philadelphia. Heep obligingly takes care of the day-to-day mechanical problems of life for the tenants of this enclave, with a light touch of compassion and humor that's hidden behind a stutter, borne out of sadness. One night, his quiet existence is shattered when he rescues a mysterious woman (Bryce Dallas Howard, "The Village") from the Cove's swimming pool.

She is beautiful, unclothed and says she comes from the Blue World of catacombs and caves beneath the water. Her name is Story, and she has come to impart a story of warning to humans to guard against destroying this world. There is someone who lives at The Cove that must see her, but she doesn't know who it is. This must be done quickly so that Story can return to her underwater home. One problem, she is out of the water and vulnerable. According to an ancient Chinese fable, Story is a "narf," an underwater nymph that must be protected until she can return home.

Prowling the grounds surrounding The Cove is a vicious hound-like beast that camouflages itself to look like grass or gnarled tree roots. There is a brief period of time when this creature can not kill Story. If it tries, it will be devoured by three savage demons that live in the trees.

Cleveland draws his cadre of protectors from the residents of the Cove. M. Night Shyamalan casts himself as a writer and friend of Cleveland's, who has an immediate connection with Story, He lives with his sister, played by the beautiful Sarita Choudhury ("The War Within" and the 1991 hit "Mississippi Masala," with Denzel Washington). Bob Balaban does a terrific turn as an arrogant film and book critic. Jeffrey Wright's ("Syriana," "Broken Flowers") consider Provocative Writer/Director M. Night Shyamalan buried the possibility for an interesting and entertaining story with a snare of too many characters in search of a movie plot in "Lady in the Water."

We were looking forward to what new, self-inflicted (with the exception of "Signs") pain the director of "The Sixth Sense," "Unbreakable," "Signs" and "The Village" had in store for audiences to contemplate, but we never felt the uncertainty of "The Sixth Sense," or the dread of "Signs."

Bryce Howard plays the 'Lady in the Water' in this new film by director M. Night Shyamalan. Paul Giamatti, as Cleveland Heep, tries to help save her from the dark secret that threatens her and mankind.

Clerks II (R): Ten years ago, best Amy," "Dogma," "Jay and friends Dante Hicks (Brian Silent Bob Strike Back") O'Halloran) and Randal Graves (Jeff Anderson) were New Jersey mini-mall clerks, still slacking off together in their early 20s. Now, director Kevin Smith checks back in to see what kind of changes have rocked their lives in work, romance and their eternally raucous life philosophy.

What he discovers is that never before have so many still done so little while having so much fun doing it. Now working in the fast-food universe, Dante and Randal have managed to maintain, and even hone, their in-your-face attitudes, agile skill with vulgarities and unbridled love of screwing with the customers. But they're also faced with such shocking new prospects as marriage, leaving Jersey and finding real careers.

Smith ("Clerks," "Chasing pushes his nothing-is-sacred humor right to the edge and then takes a leap as Dante and Randal invade the world of Mooby's fast food restaurant, where the slogan is "I'm Eating

Behind the counter, where the only other employees are an uber-nerd (Trevor Ferhman) and an entirely too sexy manager (Rosario Dawson), Dante and Randal are free to offend anybody and everybody who so much as orders fries in their inimitably irreverent way.

But, even as riotous debates rage between them over such burning matters as George Lucas v. Peter Jackson v. Jesus, change is on the horizon. When Dante announces that he's going to leave Jersey forever and marry Emma Bunting (Jennifer Schwalbach), Randal plots a going-away party so shocking it will draw the police, the fire department and potential protests from PETA, while altering their lives forever.

Monster House (PG): An animated film about three teens who react in interesting ways when they determine that their neighbor's house is a living, breathing scary monster. The place earns its reputation as a "Monster House" because it's not only frightening and angry, but it likes to eat things, including people.

Although aimed at young kids, there is a creep factor and plenty of crude humor that for some might cross over into the gray area of PG-13.

The new comed, "Clerks II," is a story about the lives of two best friends, Dante Hicks, played by Brian O'Halloran, and Randal Graves, played by Jeff Anderson.

The wonder of water

Question: What is the importance of water?

Answer: Pure water is an odorless, tasteless clear liquid. Water is nature's most important gift to mankind.

Essential to life, a person's life survival depends on drinking water. Water is one of the most essential elements to good health. Water is necessary for digestion and the absorption of food. Water helps maintain proper muscle tone, supplies oxygen and nutrients to our cells, rids the body of wastes and serves as a natural air conditioning.

Water also cushions joints and protects tissues and organs, including the spinal cord from shock and damage. Among its other benefits, water plays a major part in weight loss. Since water contains no calories, it can serve as an appetite suppressant and helps the body metabo-lize fat. Also, drinking water helps reduce water retention by stimulating your kidneys. It is important not to chug water. Take a few sips every half hour.

Though not considered a food because water does not deliver calories - dehydration (lack of water) will kill us faster than starvation (lack of food). Drinking water all year is very important, but it is especially important during the hot summer months.

Signs of dehydration are joint pain, muscle weakness, stomach pain or nausea, low energy, mental confusion and disorientation. It is important to remember the "dry mouth" signal is the last outward sign of extreme dehydration. As our bodies try to adjust to being deprived of water, our thirst mechanism becomes disabled. In addition, the thirst sensation gradually decreases with age.

There is a difference between drinking pure water and beverages that contain water. Fruit juices, soft drinks, sports drinks, coffee, etc. might contain substances that are not healthy and actually contradict some positive effects of the added water.

Caffeinated beverages stimulate the adrenal glands and act as diuretics, robbing your body of necessary water. Soft drinks contain phosphorus, which can

The yellow brick road

In the legendary movie "The Wizard of Oz," Dorothy and Toto were trying desperately to find their way home. They followed the yellow brick road, meeting friends and foes along the way. They were terribly home sick and vearned to go home. Well, I know a Toto, who by no fault of her own has found herself on that yellow brick road, looking for home.

Toto, a Cairn Terrier, had a family since she was a pup. Toto is now 13 and homeless.

Sandy Kamen Wisniewski

Her parents went to a local animal hospital and wanted her to be put to sleep because "she was messing in the house sometimes." (It is my understanding that she was being left alone 12 hours a day).

A compassionate vet tech asked, "if we could find a home for her, would that be OK?"

Their response, "Well, we didn't think anyone would want an old dog, but if you want to."

What just breaks my heart is that Toto is wondering where her family is. She keeps looking for them, wondering when she will go home. I can't imagine ever doing that to my dog - ever. To experience all their milestones, and them to be a part of mine, they are family until the quality of their life is no longer. Being old doesn't mean that she is not worth anything.

When I was asked to help her, how could I not? Unfortunately, we don't have any open foster homes, so the dog will stay at the vet until we can either find her a forever home, or a foster family that will take her.

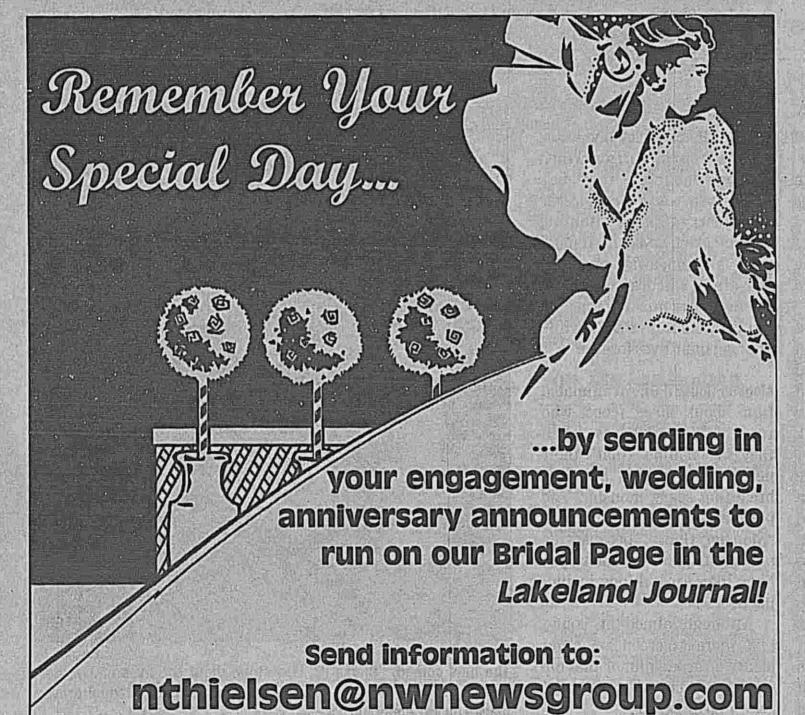

Toto is in good health and very sweet, but understandably confused and sad right now. She tucks her tail between her legs a lot, but after a few minutes of sweet talk, she belly crawls for some scratches. She would be best in a home with no kids, or older kids so it's a bit quieter. She would do OK with another dog, as long as it's older like her and maybe small like her too. She is perfectly fine with cats.

Can someone help mend this little girl's broken heart, and give her the precious love and care she so deserves? Please e-mail aear1@anet.com, or call (847) 816-0831 if you can help.

Mascara madness comes to Waukegan

By DANI SCHWEIGERT dschweigert@nwnewsgroup.com

Alice Cooper may be close to 60, but his lyrics and onstage theatrics are still a hit with fans of all ages. Sure he may wear long black hair and mascara, but Cooper is the epitome of a rock 'n' roller. With snakes draped across his body, and chickens being torn apart by ecstatic crowds, Cooper's performances are anything but typical and began a new era of rock 'n' roll.

Recently, Cooper stopped by to perform at the Genesee Theatre in Waukegan, and the Weekly Journals caught up with him to chat about his tour, golfing and where he finds inspiration for writing those unforgettable lyrics.

WJ: Alice, how would you describe the type of audience you have attracted through the years?

AC: We definitely have, throughout my whole career, attracted the outcasts. We've represented the outcasts of rock 'n' roll, and those are the fans that relate to the Alice Cooper character. The fan base is always two extremes. They're either total nerds or totally hip. We either have bikers or Christians.

WJ: Wow, it sounds like you've got quite a following. How would you describe the feeling of being onstage and performing for a crowd?

AC: It's great! The fans always know the songs, and they know the show is going to be really WJ: Speaking of your shows, you're known for bringing snakes onstage. Do you have any snakes at home?

AC: (Laughs) I live in Arizona. If I wanted to have a snake, I'd go out in my backyard and catch a rattlesnake. We usually use a boaor a python for performances because a 13-foot snake looks more impressive to the audience. We don't use anything venomous, and the [audience] wouldn't be able to tell it was a rattlesnake onstage anyway.

WJ: Your shows are definitely entertaining, but when you're not performing anymore, how would you like to be remembered by fans?

AC: Well, Alice brought the concept of putting on a big show to rock 'n' roll. We invented the whole make-up and the theatrical aspects of performing. It's all about making the stage come alive.

WJ: You always seem to know how to make the stage light up. Where do find inspiration for your songs?

AC: People are the best source of inspiration. They're a vast ocean of humor, irony, sex, romance and stupidity all rolled into one. I can sit next to a guy on an airplane, and he's told me his whole life story in 9 minutes.

WJ: I heard you were a journalist back in high school. How did your experience writing your column, "Get Outta My Hair," help you in your music career?

AC: It definitely has helped. I was like Ferris Bueller in high school. I ran my school, and I didn't go to any classes because my teachers liked me so much. I didn't really pay attention in algebra because I knew I was never going to need it, but I knew I needed a command of the language, so I focused on and did really [well] in journalism and art classes.

WJ: How did writing the column give you a command of the language?

AC: When you're writing a 3-minute song, and it has to have a punchline, you have to know how to write it backwards to tell a story.

WJ: In between writing your songs and touring, have you found any time to get in a few games of golf?

AC: (Laughs) Oh, I only play everyday. Rock 'n' roll has taken over golf from the old guys. When you're on the road, there's a golf course in every city. It's either that or going to the mall every day, and that gets pretty boring.

Golf to me is what running and going to the gym is to other people. At 6:30 every morning, I'm out on the tee. It's an addiction. I used to be addicted to alcohol, and I had a severe drinking problem, so I switched one addiction for another.

WJ: I heard you ran against Nixon for president. Do you have an interest in politics?

AC: Well, everyone knows that was [just a joke]. I hate politics, and rock 'n' roll couldn't get farther away from it. When I think of politics, I think of old, gray people in suits. Rock 'n' roll is nothing like that, and I go out of my way not to have anything to do with politics.

WJ: OK, I have to ask. What made you change your name from Vincent Furnier to Alice Cooper?

AC: It was just for total shock value. In the '70s, that was what it was all about.

efore the show:

Standing outside the Genesee Theatre in Waukegan, it was hard to miss the flashing rainbow-colored sign with Alice Cooper's name spread across it in large, bold print. But with fans decked out in black T-shirts, top hats and heavy eye makeup, there was no mistaking this was an Alice Cooper concert - there was no need for the sign.

As the crowd flocked to the theater, snapping photos along the way, it quickly became apparent Cooper's music has reached the next generation. Teenagers and even young children were there with their parents, ready to experience Alice Cooper live for the first time.

When walking into the theater, the elegant architecture, crystal chandeliers and seated auditorium might seem like an odd place for a rock 'n' roll icon to perform, but it was a surprisingly perfect fit.

Opening act:

Fans slowly trickled into their seats, met by the energetic and intoxicating sounds of "The Vacation." The band, made up of four guys from California, were thrilled at the opportunity to tour with Cooper.

"It's a great experience," Eric "Dutch" Suoninen, bass guitarist for the band, said. "When you're just starting out, people don't know you, so you have to work your [butt] off to get their attention and impress them."

Although the experience of opening for Cooper has been a dream come true, there have been some crazy moments along the way for the band.

"Last night I was wasted, and all I remember is being passed around by the crowd," band member Ben Tegel said. Tegel's twin brother, Steve, agreed there have been some interesting situations.

"The other day. I fell over onstage during our second song and cut my finger. I kept playing, and blood was all over my guitar," Steve said.

But despite the bumps and bruises, the Tegel twins, who are originally from southern Illinois, are thrilled to be living out their dream of playing with a band. And with impressive, tight chords played easily on the acoustic and bass guitars, along with powerful vocals, "The Vacation" is certainly on its way.

Showtime:

The theater went dark, the lights flashed and the music from "Phantom of the Opera" blasted as Alice Cooper took the stage, greeted by a standing ovation from the crowd. Wearing his traditional black gloves, tight black pants, long hair and makeup, Cooper pumped up the crowd with his

the stage, and spotlights shone seem to fade. and moved in quick circles through the areas where eyeballs would be, making it appear as if colored tears were running down them. Hearing the lyrics that have entertained America for decades live filled the crowd with energy, and fans sang along to "No More Mr. Nice Guy" under Cooper's command as he pointed to the crowd during the refrain.

The enthusiasm of the audience never died, and the crowd only remained seated for one song, when they mirrored Cooper's posture as he sat at the edge of the stage during "I Never Cry." But as Cooper jumped up for the next song, raising his arms in the air, the audience got back to its feet, as if on cue. Parents held their children up to see Cooper on the stage, taking their hands and clapping them to the beat, An enlarged image of introducing the next genera-Cooper's eyes filled the back of tion to the songs that never

> But it was hard to tell whether the children or parents were more excited as Cooper tossed silver beads up into the balcony during "Dirty Diamonds."

One of those parents was Tammy Fortney, of Round Lake Beech, who was sitting with her daughter, Jacy. Wearing. Alice Cooper T-shirts and black eye makeup, it was difficult not to notice these mother-daughter die-hard fans.

"I've been a fan since second grade, and my family better be, too," Tammy said with a laugh. "I've always loved Alice Cooper. People need to know that when Alice is onstage, he's like a movie and rock star at the same time, but offstage he's an average, normal person. He golfs, he

Simple recipes to make an instant favorite for everyone

By TOM WITOM thomaswitom@yahoo.com

"The Big Book of Fish and Shellfish" (Chronicle), by writer and cooking school instructor Fred Thompson, is a real catch. This volume has more than 250 recipes, ranging from appetizers to main courses to side dishes.

Among them is Thompson's easy-to-prepare Poached Salmon with Sauce Gribiche: a wonderful dish to take along on a picnic, whether it's to Ravinia or the nearest forest preserve, or one's own back yard. The recipe also will work with snapper, sea bass and tilefish, but if you use flounder or other flatter fish, cut the time off the heat by 10 minutes.

In addition, grill masters will want to add Thompson's Bourbon-Grilled Shrimp Skewers to their repertoire.

> Easy Poached Salmon with Sauce Gribiche (Serves 4)

Ingredients:

SAUCE GRIBICHE

1 cup good-quality mayon and a large hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped

Juice of 1/2 lemon

1 tablespoon capers, rinsed and drained

1 tablespoon chopped cornichons 2 teaspoon chopped shallot, rinsed in cold water

2 teaspoon chopped fresh parsley 11/2 teaspoons sliced fresh chives

11/2 teaspoons chopped fresh

dill

1 teaspoon Dijon mustard

SALMON

4 6-ounce salmon fillets
1/4 cup kosher salt
1 tablespoon black peppercorns

Directions:

To make the sauce: Combine the mayonnaise, eggs, lemon juice, capers, cornichons, shallot, parsley, chives, dill and mustard in a large bowl, and stir thoroughly. Refrigerate until ready to serve.

To prepare the salmon: Place the fillets in a saute pan big enough to hold them. Cover the fillets with water, and add the salt and peppercorns.

Place the pan over medium-high heat, and bring to a boil.

Remove from the heat, and let the fish sit in the water for 25 to 30 minutes.

Remove and refrigerate the fish until cold. Serve with the Sauce Gribiche.

Bourbon-Grilled Shrimp Skewers (Serves 8)

Ingredients:

24 wooden skewers
1 cup good Kentucky or Tennessee bourbon
1 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1 tablespoon freshly cracked black pepper
3/4 cup chopped shallots

24 slices applewood- or hickorysmoked bacon 24 iumbo (16 count) shrimp

24 jumbo (16 count) shrimp, peeled and deveined

Directions:

Soak the skewers in water for 30 minutes.

Combine the bourbon, sugar, corn syrup, pepper and shallots in a large sauté pan over medium heat.

Be careful: the bourbon might, and probably will, flame. Have a pot lid close by to suffocate the flames if necessary. Simmer the sauce until it is thick enough to coat the back of a spoon, about 10 minutes. Set aside.

Wrap 1 slice of bacon around each shrimp. Pierce it with a skewer. Continue with the remaining bacon and shrimp.

Light a charcoal fire, or preheat your gas grill on medium. Oil your grill's cooking grate.

Grill the shrimp until the bacon is crisp and the shrimp are cooked through, about 10 minutes.

Pasta Twist Salad With Olives (Serves: 6 - about 9 cups salad) Ingredients:

12 ounces fusilli, penne or bow tie pasta, uncooked

1 can (6 ounces) Lindsay Black Ripe Pitted

Olives, drained and coarsely chopped

1 jar (7 ounces) roasted red bell peppers, drained, cut into strips 1 jar (6 1/2 ounces) marinated artichoke hearts, drained and coarsely chopped

1 cup diced provolone or mozzarella cheese

1 cup diced salami

1/2 cup light or regular Caesar or Italian salad dressing 1/4 cup sliced basil or chopped

Italian parsley

Directions:

Cook pasta according to package directions.

Meanwhile, in large bowl combine remaining ingredients. Drain pasta; add to bowl, tossing well. Serve at room temperature or chill up to 24 hours before serving. Serve with freshly ground black pepper, if desired.

Johnny Depp saves the day in new 'Pirates' game

I don't have a clue what "Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest" would be like if it weren't for the inspiration of "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "Pitfall." You swing on ropes over lava pits like in "Pitfall." You run along caverns and ledges where boulders roll at you, just like in "Raiders." And by the way, if hero-pirate Jack Sparrow wore less eyeliner, he could pass as Christina . Aguilera.

It's a real boon for "Pirates" - a good but repetitive action game - to have signed up charming Johnny Depp to speak voiceovers for Jack, the drunken adventurer he famously plays in the movies. When he stabs a killer zombie to death, he smells its rot and says, "And I thought they smelled bad on the outside." Not a great line, but Depp makes a chuckle of it.

Only occasionally does a game sign up such a serious actor. Most notably, Samuel L. Jackson did forceful work in "The Incredibles" and "Grand Theft Auto: San Andreas." It doesn't take a famous actor to make a role sing. If I could induct one actor into a gaming Hall of Fame, my nominee would be James McCaffrey, who voiced deep, disaffected sadness and anger into the noir detective of the "Max Payne" games.

In the case of "Pirates," Depp makes it more passable. Half the fun is moving Depp's performance-driven sway, while he swordfights and drunkenly stumbles past those "Raiders"- ish boulders and "Pitfall"-esque lava pits. Without the Depp-con-

torted body movements and voiceovers, it would just be a game where you press two buttons over and over to stab people in the ribs. Acting isn't everything. To the contrary, the smaller-marquee game, "Field Commander," has no good voice acting, and it reeks of terrible dialogue, but the war action is so engrossing it keeps me awake until 5 a.m. trying to conquer battlefields.

I can't even believe I like

"Field Commander." It's a strategy, role-playing game, my least favorite genre. I prefer to play games where I get to do the first-person shooting. But "Field Commander" makes the most of its role-playing a chesslike intrigue. You position tanks, troops and helicopters on a field. Your opponent - another player, or the computer tries to outmaneuver you.

You move snipers and soldiers only a few steps at a time, like pawns. You drive tanks farther distances, like rooks or knights. And helicopters zoom over the landscape, like queens. You protect your headquarters. try to invade enemy headquarters and blow up rival tanks and soldiers.

The reason "Field Commander" works, while many other role-playing games do not, is its ease of taut action. Unlike chess, it's not very difficult to get a grasp of complex movements. It may take a few attempts before you figure out how to win, but it's very satisfying to grasp victory at the last second, just when you think you're about to get creamed by a rocket launcher.

You do, however, have to put up with the occasional bad dialogue from some actor the game booklet doesn't even name. It's like this: "You may have won this time, but I assure you, it won't be so easy next time!" Ugh. Where is Johnny Depp when you need him?

Then, during "Go to Hell," Tammy and the rest of the audience screamed and cheered as a woman cracking a whip strutted across the stage in black leather. At the end of the song, the woman opened her bat-like cape, sending Cooper "to hell." But the moment that got the strongest reaction from the audience was when Cooper came on stage holding an Albino Burmese Python dur-"Welcome to Nightmare."

Paul Yucun, of Antioch, said the python was his favorite part of the show. Yucun was there with his son, Mitch, who was enjoying his first Cooper concert.

"I saw him years ago, and I wanted to see him again," Paul said. "I think it's great [Cooper] came to Waukegan because it gives everyone a chance to see him up close."

Getting some hot advice

Experts offer tips on how to deal with the heat

By EMILY PREVITI

epreviti@nwnewsgroup.com

Congratulations, Lake County. Along with the rest of the Chicago area, the weather here has, as of July 17, qualified as a heat wave.

According to Dr. George Luber, at the Center for Disease Control, temperatures must clear 90 degrees for three days in a row in order to qualify as a heat wave.

Condell Medical Center, in Libertyville, had received five patients, including two soccer players, since July 14. Five patients with heat-related problems, most of whom required rehydration, were admitted to Lake Forest Hospital. Other Lake County hospitals surveyed did not report any such patients.

Luber said hospitals and health officials start to see patients with heat-related complications after the second day.

"The body [has] natural ability to keep cool, but people succumb to it after a time," he Swelter safely

The Lake County Health Department and Center for Disease Control offer advice to stay healthy in the heat:

Check on children and seniors: Dale Galassie, executive director of the department and center, emphasized that the elderly, small children and bedridden or chronically ill people should take extra caution when temperatures rise. Hydration and air conditioning, he said, make all the difference for members of these vulnerable groups. He suggested that people keep tabs on older neighbors and relatives.

Drink up: Humidity and heat cause sweating and dehydration, so drink lots of water, fruit juice or lemonade, but skip coffee even iced - and other beverages with caffeine or alcohol. The body cools itself through sweating, so this keeps body temperature down.

Grayslake's Perry president of municipal league

Group receives three applications to fill executive director vacancy

By HELEN MANSFIELD hmansfield@nwnewgroup.com

GRAYSLAKE – It took some effort and some light fudging of the figures, but members of the Lake County Municipal League were finally able to meet and elected officers this month.

President Tim Perry had been selected to serve as the league's president. But, the group had been unable to establish a quorum of board members since May's general membership meeting.

Perry told the group, semiseriously, that it was not his intention to serve as the league's president, but with the passing of Round Lake Park Village Board President Ila Bauer earlier in the year, things changed.

Vernon Hills Village Board President Roger Byrne served as acting interim president following Bauer's death.

"It was one of my goals not to become president," Perry said. The league members met Wednesday at the College of Lake County prior to the Lake
County Transportation Alliance transportation meeting with elected officials from around Lake County.

Perry, who ran the meeting, said 17 of the 41 league members said they would attend the brief meeting.

Approximately 15 minutes into the meeting, and with only 15 members present, Perry opted to get the meeting under way and said they had a quorum.

Perry announced that he had received three applications from candidates seeking the recently vacated executive director position. Former director, Chris Evans, recently left the > league after nearly 11 years of service, to pursue other ventures.

Tim Perry Lake County Municipal League president.

Because
Evans is technically an employee of the village of Gurnee, Perry said it would be the village that payd Evans' three month severance package.

The executive director position, according to Perry, is a part-time position. Because the position has been in transition, events such as their annual golf outing had to be cancelled.

In other business, the league approved dropping the number of board members from 15 to 9, to consist of a quorum.

Perry is confident the league will continue cooperation and information sharing among the municipalities in Lake County, but would like to do it less often.

"I've said before, I'm not a fan of long meetings, so if we could be more fast and efficient," Perry said that would be all the better.

Stormwater mangement commission names new director

By ESTHER J. CEPEDA news@nwnewsgroup.com

Stormwater management infrastructure— not exactly the tantalizing, must-know news item of the summer.

But tell that to the Gurnee residents who used paddle boats to check on neighbors in late May 2004 when the Des Plaines River crested to 12 feet and Federal Emergency Management Agency toured the area to decide whether to declare it a federal disaster site.

The Lake County Stormwater Management Commission in Libertyville is where 19 engineers and natural resource protection experts work to keep Lake County's infrastructure in top shape. They are ready to handle the types of rains northern Illinois got back in 2004 and in 1986 when the Des Plaines River presidential disaster declaration brought the SMC into being.

After a three month national search, the commission's board found the man who will take over as director of the agency after Ward Miller resigned in early March.

Edward Devine, of Middletown, N.Y., will join the SMC. with six years of experience as director of Rockland County Drainage Agency in New City, N.Y. Rockland County Drainage was formed after Hurricane Floyd ravaged the East Coast in 2000, causing 40 deaths and an estimated $1 billion in losses, much of it due to flooding.

But Steve Mountsier, SMC chairman, described Devine as the driving force behind getting that agency up and running and establishing "best practice" protocols in an area similar to Lake County.

"I think we've chosen the right leader," Mountsier said. "We had 16 strong candidates and we narrowed those down to two, but Ed was the clear choice."

Devine will continue to drive SMC's flood hazard mitigation, watershed planning and natural resource protection efforts; along with overseeing mapping programs, permit reviews and grant acquisitions.

Devine has the benefit of a Marquette University Law degree and Midwest experience in urban and regional planning from graduate course work at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

But who is Ed Devine? Well, we'll have to wait to find out. The Weekly Journals tried to catch up with him this week and all we know for sure is that he's a hard worker – out in the field tying up loose ends before making the big move to Lake County.

"He's at work most of the time these days," his wife, Barb, said.

The SMC board is set to approve Devine's contract at its August meeting. Until Devine's arrival in September Mike Warner will remain acting director and then continue in his position as chief engineer.

Chicago police officers to open local Dunkin' Donuts

By REBECCA KLUGIEWICZ rklugiewicz@nwnewsgroup.com

LIBERTYVILLE - The Evans brothers know how to make fun of themselves.

Two of the three brothers are police officers, and they're opening their own Dunkin' Donuts in Libertyville.

It is the first time in the history of Dunkin' Donuts that police officers will own a franchise.

Tom, 39, is a Chicago patrolman assigned to the detective position. Jim, 45, is a property crime detective and hostage negotiator in Chicago. Their brother, Larry, 46, owns a dry business cleaning Northbrook.

The three brothers are making their dream come true by opening their own Dunkin' Donuts, at 210 Peterson Road.

Jim said he expects people to laugh when they find out about cops opening a donut shop. In fact, it has already happened.

"When going through our business loans, we met one woman who said the whole building was laughing," he said.

That wasn't the first time someone poked fun at the stereotypical "cops and donuts" joke. Jim recalled arresting someone who said, "Come on, give me a break, donut breath." However, he won't admit whether his breath actually smelled like donuts.

"I can neither confirm nor deny that allegation," he joked.

During academy training, he and five other officers stopped at Dunkin' Donuts for a snack. He said the entire restaurant stopped and stared at them.

Despite the jokes, he said he won't stop eating there. He and his brothers look forward to owning their own Dunkin' Donuts. Jim said his brother Larry will be at the business most of the time, and he and Tom will work there when they

"It just gave us that sense of community again, which we really don't see very much in Chicago anymore," Jim said.

He and his brothers look forward to that sense of community, and hope to give back.

"When we open, it's not going to be just another Dunkin' Donuts," he said. "We're going to give back to the community. Libertyville is going to know the Evans brothers.'

The Dunkin' Donuts owned by the Evans brothers is expected to open in late August. The location will feature a drive-thru window and will be open 24 hours each day.

Regulate: Eat light, frequent meals to keep metabolic rate steady.

Shun the sun: Smear on sunscreen and lip balm with 15-plus SPF, wear wraparound or closefitting sunglasses. Look for a label that rates ANSI at 99 percent and YVA at 98 percent. Over-exposure to direct sunlight can induce heat stroke, which can be fatal. Symptoms include high body temperature, skin that is red or dry, rapid pulse and loss of consciousness.

Schedule slacking off: Avoid strenuous labor between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Dr. George Luber, epidemiologist with the National Center for Environmental Health at the Center for Disease Control, agreed that children and the elderly are especially vulnerable, but that the rate of heat-related deaths among working-age males has increased in some areas of the country.

Tune in: Pale and clammy skin, heavy perspiration, dizziness, weakness headache or cramps, nausea and fainting can indicate heat exhaustion, which is caused by spending too much time in the heat.

Rink Side Family Entertainment Center, in Gurnee Mills, off Grand Avenue, Gurnee, will offer free ice skating and rental when temperatures clear 90 degrees. 1,545 deaths, from 1999 to 2002 in the United States were associated with exposure to extreme natural heat, such as a heat wave or vigorous physical activity, like athletic training.

126 residents of Illinois died due to heat during this time. Lake County residents accounted for 2 of these.

Dr. George Luber, at the Center for Disease Control, explained that underreporting skews these figures. Heat-related deaths are associated with cardiovascular disease, as exposure to extreme heat pushes already-weak systems over the edge. Medical examiners typically report the death as attributable to the disease, rather than the heat.

PADS Crisis Services operates a free community cooling center at its main office at the North Chicago Veteran's Administration, 3001 Green Bay Road/Route 131 (on the corner of Lewis Avenue and Route 137), in North Chicago, from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m daily.

Shopping malls, libraries and movie theaters also control their climates, said Dr. George Luber of the Center for Disease Control.

"It resets [one's] thermal clock," Luber said. "Those who have that bit of releif do a lot better than those who have constant [heat] stress on the body."

People stuck in their non-airconditioned homes should stay in the basement or on the lowest floor (heat rises) and close drapes to keep out the sun.

Luber recommended that those who cannot access AC wear damp clothing, or mist themselves with water, and sit in front of a fan.

"We warn against the use of fans in closed rooms because it acts like a convection oven," he said.

The elderly often use fans inside closed rooms for fear of opening windows for crime reasons, according to Luber.

Terror trials up for debate

President Bush has decided not to fight a Supreme Court ruling that says prisoners at Guantanamo Bay fall under the Geneva Conventions.

The 450-some people held there for up to five years now are classified as prisoners of war, not "detainees."

It might be a matter of semantics to the Bush administration, but also it might help improve the world image of the United States.

When the administration declared the prisoners to be outside the provisions of Article 3 of the conventions, the United States looked like a hypocrite to many people.

The war against terrorism is unlike other wars, where boundaries are drawn, and personnel are distinguished from civilians. War pitted one nation against another on a common ground.

A war of terrorism occurs randomly around the world. Terrorists strap bombs to their bodies, detonating them in crowds. Terrorists arive explosives-laden vehicles into buildings. Terrorists fly airliners into skyscrapers.

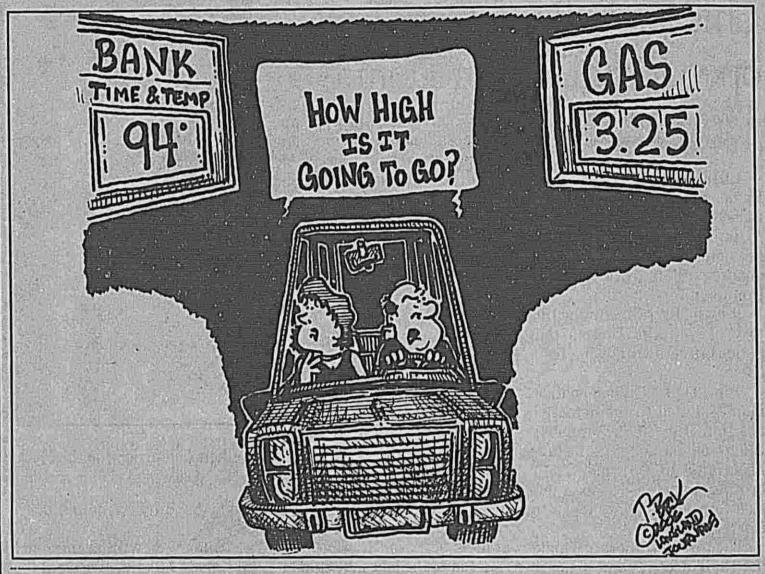

Terrorists have no country, no regard for borders. Countries such as Afghanistan, Pakistan, Iran, Syria and Lebanon harbor them. But they might live among people of enemy countries.

But the more important question now is, what legal rights do suspected terrorists have as prisoners of war? The president insists they be prosecuted in military commissions, whose procedures are created within the administration. Hearsay, secret intelligence sources and undisclosed evidence could be used to convict them.

The House seems to be ready to give the administration the go-ahead to adopt whatever means it deems necessary. But leading Senate Republicans want a real say in drafting trial procedures. They want to use the Uniform Code of Military Justice as a starting point. The end results remains to be seen.

That is as it should be in the United States. U.S. standards should be high. It might take hard negotiation to draft procedures, but the legislative and executive branches of government can make it happen.

Senators such as John McCain, R-Ariz., and John Warner, R-Va., have it right. The rule of law is not the exclusive domain of the executive.

Political ads get nasty between Democrats and Republicans

This breathless Associated Press item came in on the wire July 14: "Republicans are in jeopardy of losing their grip on Congress in November.

"With less than four months to the midterm elections, the latest Associated Press-Ipsos poll found that Americans, by an almost 3-to-1 margin, hold the GOP-controlled Congress in low regard and profess a desire to see Democrats wrest control after a dozen years of Republican rule."

Uh, not so fast.

That same day the AP also reported bipartisan outrage over our very own U.S. Rep. Rahm Emmanuel, D-Chicago, using images of flag-draped coffins of American troops in a fundraising ad.

The ad, which ran for two weeks on the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee Web site, also featured a photo of Tom Delay doctored to look like a mug shot. It was yanked Friday after the GOPers took a look and pitched a fit.

U.S. Rep. Tom Reynolds, R-N.Y., the chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee shook his angry fist: "For the Democrats everything is about politics, but this crosses the line."

Ouch! Despite Reynold's statement seeming equally fitting for either party at any given time, the Dems must Cepeda have agreed, because they backed right down. But their cleanly scrubbed Web site still features this nice line: "The future of our nation is in your hands!"

Esther J.

Yes, and right now I would like to just wash them of the whole business.

Frugal vote

Politics requires a certain finesse. And like any good relationship, it features compromise, which is what we witnessed last week when the Lake County Board voted down a $2,000 annual expense account increase.

Board members must have sensed some annoyance left from the 4 percent pay increase they gave themselves last May. Their frugality in this instance comes as a welcome breath of fresh air.

While it's unfortunate that some wind up paying for a part of county business out of their own pockets, board member Ann Maine, who has not yet spent a dime this fiscal year, articulated it perfectly: "With $4,500 can you do everything? No, but we need to make choices, just as all our constituents need to make choices in their budgets."

Oh, by the way Anne, do you have five dollars I can borrow? I need to buy some new pencils; for writing the column, of course.

Library board looks to protect privacy of visitors

Taking the advice of the Illinois Library Association, Lake Villa library board members wrote and approved a letter opposing legislation that would require libraries to police online content viewed by visitors.

The letter went out to U.S. Rep. Melissa Bean, D-Barrington, one of the main supporters of House Resolution 5319. This bill would restrict access to social networking Web sites, such as Myspace.com or facebook.com, as well as sites that depict indecent or pornographic content.

Library Illinois Association asked all libraries in the state to write their local representatives to speak against the legislation, said James Daley, Lake Villa library board trustee.

"You basically have to block everything," Daley said. "This goes way too far. We fully support protecting children from online predators, no question about that, but there are better ways to do that than passing this bill."

Principle rather than priority drove trustees on the Gurnee Village Board to oppose payment for two items at its meeting on July 10.

One of these items was the Heroes of Freedom War Memorial, which will stand at 4580 Old Grand Avenue.

Trustee Ray Damijonaitis, who participates in the project, said that volunteer efforts and fundraising totaling $275,000 have enabled the project.

Although trustee Jeanne Balmes approved the move in the end, she opposed the village's decision to pay the memorial's electricity bill - about $30 monthly.

"I don't like to be negative, but it was asserted by the former mayor [Don Rudny] that this would not cost the village a dime," she said.

The comment came after another decision: spend $2,045 to send Gurnee Police Chief Robert Jones to a conference.

The motion passed by a 5-1 vote; Damijonaitis dissented.

"I will be declining approval of all trips until finances [are under control]," he said.

A deficit of more than $1 million spurred the village to decide in April to increase fees for business licenses, levy a resident rescue fee and one percent food and beverage tax in-

Balmes voiced her support of such trips.

."[It's] essential that we update our staff," she said.

The cost of the electricity did not cause Balmes to object. she said, but the change the arrangement - as she understood it - between the village and Heroes of Freedom.

Mayor Kristina Kovarik said the village must pick up the tab for utilities because it sits on public land.

Kovarik deemed the fees "insignificant," and said the "emotions of the moment" resulted in misunderstanding payment responsibilities.

"I asked at the meeting and it's in the minutes," Balmes countered. "I hate being negative, but this is making me very angry."

Pet problems?

Dan Seals called on his opponent, U.S. Rep. Mark Kirk, R-Highland Park, to change his priorities and start focusing on tion, following a Kirk press son board showed for the meet- Moy in the last election.

event about legislation regarding pet protections.

"This is another small-bore issue that everyone agrees with," said Seals in a release. "Kirk would like to distract us from his votes with the Bush Administration and the other Bush Republicans - votes that fail to address the significant problems facing ordinary Americans. Given all of the challenges that our nation faces, I have trouble understanding why a member of the congressional leadership would focus on this issue right now."

Quorum or no quorum?

Members of the Lake County Municipal League weren't too happy at the prospect of rescheduling yet another meeting due to a lack of a quorum.

The board has been trying to elect officers since May, but hasn't been able to get enough bodies together at any one time to

Grayslake Village Board President Tim Perry, who had be selected the new league president, opted to call a quorum the tough issues facing our na- when 16 members of the 41-per- ily beat businessman Perry

Lake County Board Chair Suzi Schmidt of Lake Villa, was annoyed and amused by the whole thing.

"I want a meeting," she said with an exasperated tone. But, at the same time, Schmidt was worried about Perry's math skills.

For those who don't know, Perry's Monday through Friday gig is as a vice president of corporate banking at First Midwest Bank in Gurnee.

"Which bank do you work for again?" Schmidt teased.

No contest

The time has come and gone for Republicans in McHenry County to find an opponent for State Rep. Jack Franks. Franks will be unopposed on the Nov. 7 ballot for his 63 district seat.

"It is a nice feeling," Franks said.

Franks has delivered much for the McHenry County district, which includes parts of Johnsburg and Island Lake. Franks, of Woodstock, is completing his fourth term. He eas-

Family matters

I love my eye doctor. His wife is just as nice. She's a doctor, too, a pediatrician.

I'll bet she knows more about corneal mucous plaques than any human should. But, when he dies and annual eye exam time rolls around, I'm not going to call her up.

Politicians, however, seem to believe that their "expertise" can flow to their family members through osmosis.

In Chicago, Todd Stroger is trying to snag dad John Stroger's Cook County Board duties. Chicago Alderman William Beavers is pushing his on his daughter, and now U.S. Rep. Jesse Jackson Jr.'s wife has been floated for the spot. Did you follow all of that?

In Lake County, District 61 State Rep. JoAnn Osmond was boosted into her dearly departed husband Tim's position and served out the remainder of his term.

There's a certain logic to it. The partner invariably hears way more about the office than anyone else, so who is more familiar to step into a position if the situation arises?

It's just not that simple and last week Avon Township officials agreed. They denied Supervisor Russ Christian's wife, Shirley, the opportunity to take the helm while he recu-perates from a stroke that sidelined him last April.

Christian's family says he'll eventually be back at the post.

In the meantime, Avon Township is without an official interim leader.

Here's where the not simple part comes in: Shirley Christian is the executive director of the Grayslake Area Chamber of Commerce, highly respected by local legislators, and volunteered to do the job with no extra pay and with a vow to not run for election. Sounds alright.

But with the spotlight on political corruption in our corner of the world, especially in the realm of hiring, it's easy to see why the Avon Township board felt apprehension, to the tune of a 2-2 vote.

It's simple to say Avon Township shouldn't be going into its fourth month without a leader and should take action. What that action should be, apparently, is not as simple.

Railroaded

I use the Metra train to Chicago infrequently. On June 1, I parked my car and paid the $1 fee. Upon returning, I saw a parking ticket. I investigated it.

The person writing the tickets and managing the five/six lots told me the same numbers can be duplicated at as many as four locations. Because I put the money in the wrong box with the right number I got a ticket. There are no receipts issued. I didn't notice the "right" money box because it faces opposite the entrance to the lot I used, so I put the money in the same numbered box at the depot collection point.

I was referred to Fox Lake building department head Bill Hart and discussed the problem. I suggested using different numbers/letters at each lot. He said this was discussed and rejected before. I then suggested a receipt system that provides proof of payment. He said they are looking into it. It seems that McHenry and Crystal Lake stations now have this system.

That would work if it was used in Fox Lake and Ingleside. I also suggested big "PAY HERE"signs for the back of the money slots by each lot. Mr. Hart said he'd look into it.

Sanctions can be severe.
Ignoring a parking ticket could result in a suspended drivers license without notification. The hassle over a disputed $5 ticket is worse than fixing the problem. It has to be a nuisance for the police, too.

Finally, the biggest cause for controversy is putting the money in the wrong slot because you are hurrying to catch a train. Tickets issued for that kind of mistake would easily be avoidable if a paid receipt proved the fee is paid.

Sweet corrections

Ms. [Linda] DeFever's article
["Goodbye, sugar," Health Beat, June 23], while conveying the basic concern against excessive sugar consumption, is discredited by several factual errors that exist in her presentation.

The errors are:

1."About 100 years ago, the average yearly intake of sugar was only about 4 pounds per person. Today the average American consumes 150 to 170 pounds of sugar per year!"

Correction: About 100 years ago, the average yearly intake of sugar was about 40 pounds per person. This value is reported in the University of Cincinnati Clermont College Web site by D.B. Fankhauser/J. Stein Carter referencing work of Robertson, et al. 1976.

(http://biology.clc.uc.edu/course s/bio111/pop.htm)

2. "There are 12 tablespoons of sugar in one can of soda, so that means your immune system is suppressed for 36 to 48 hours just by consuming a 12 oz. can of soda."

Correction: There are about 9.5 teaspoons (not even tablespoons) of sugar in a 12-ounce can of soda water. This information is from the same University of Cincinnati Clermont College source cited above.

To easily confirm Ms. DeFever's error, take one tablespoon of granulated sugar and dissolve it in one ounce (two tablespoons) of water. The result illustrates that the sugar concentration is far above any commercial soda water drink.

As for immune system depression time, that should be restated as well as identifying the percent depression after a given recovery time after ingestion of nine teaspoons of sugar.

3. "Anything that ends in 'ose' is a form of sugar, such as glucose, sucrose, fructose, maltose, lactose, dextrose, galactose, etc. Also watch for 'monosaccharides' and 'disaccharides' which are also fancy names for sugar.

Correction: Ms. DeFever's listing of sugars ending in "ose" failed to include cellulose, a nondigestible form of naturally occurring sugar. Note that dextrose is another name for glucose, merely highlighting the property of glucose to rotate polarized light in a "dextroroatry" manner, differentiating it from the "levorotary" manner of some other sugars such as levulose (fructose).

I found the article interesting.

Ms. DeFever makes a well-intentioned point to control (not eliminate) sugar intake. However, the errors in data make one feel uncomfortable with her other recommendation on use of omega 3 fish oil to wean a person off sugar.

A responsible code

Barry Reszel's letter to the editor, criticizing the Libertyville/Vernon Hills High School Board for updating the school's code of conduct for students privileged to participate and represent the district in athletics and extracurricular activities, needs a commonsense reply.

Barry Reszel does not accept the fact that it is a privilege for students to represent their high school and the community, and the high school board has the perfect right to expect and insist on acceptable standards of personal conduct from its performing students. He also does not accept the concept of community standards and [morals.]

The board undoubtedly felt the change was needed with the evolution of the Internet, personal Web sites and blogs.

Barry Reszel claims he is the protector of the constitution, the First Amendment and free speech. With Reszel we have learned, no matter how inappropriate, illegal, perverted or obscene the message whether it be on a blog, the Internet or Cook Library, no one should try to monitor these sites that can affect young minds.

My compliments to Board
President Ann Landgraft for her eloquent explanation in her letter to the editor enumerating the Board's decision for amending the code of conduct that is signed by all students and their parents representing the district in athletics, competition and the arts.

All students have rights in Libertyville to an education, but participation in high school activities is a privilege, and participation to standards is reasonable and part of the student's total education.

The high school board has not stopped students' right to personal blogs or Web sites.

Buoys a safety issue

I live [near] Pistakee Lake on the Chain, on Eagle Point Road. Every year my neighbors and I put out buoys so that our children, as well as ourselves, can enjoy the lake without getting hit by boaters who come to close to shore. Boaters are supposed to stay 150 feet from shore as a "no wake zone."

Every year the boaters hit these buoys and destroy them. We have gone though five buoys in the past two years, These buoys are not cheap. They are more than $100 each.

The governing body, which is the Fox Waterway Agency will not replace these buoys for free, so the homeowners must buy them again and again. The stance of the Fox Waterway Agency is to report the incident to the police with a Illinois boat I.D. number, but most of the damage comes at night from, more than likely, intoxicated boaters, so that is impossible. Last year some nut in a pontoon boat rolled over three of them like they weren't even there. I tried to get his boat number but could not find one as he whizzed on by.

Safety should be the agency's biggest concern. Once a buoy is purchased it should be replaced by the agency for free or at least a reduced fee if hit by boaters. The fees the agency collects should pay for this.

Also, the agency should put lights on these buoys. I put lights on two of the ones we have left, and so far so good.

This is a real safety issue, and the Fox Waterway Agency should do something before someone gets badly hurt or, worse, killed.

And higher taxes, too

Being a lifelong Antioch resident, I am outraged by the recent article where residents of Arbors of Windmill creek subdivision take every step necessary to prevent their way of life from changing too drastically. It must have been OK for the builder to develop Arbor Windmills in my backyard.

Kathy Kurth, for example, moved into Arbor Windmills just four years ago. Arbor Windmills is one of the newest large subdivisions to the Antioch area. While Kathy claims you could roll a ball down the street and no one could hear you, I remember before they turned that cornfield into a subdivision there was no road to roll a ball down.

If they think the only noises were wind rustling the long grasses now, I remember when their was no noise except for the farmer tilling the land or harvesting the crops a few times a year.

Kathy Kurth also claims she does not feel that 20 acres is enough land for the water park. Would she rather have 60 more homes in that area? Sixty homes that would not only impact the traffic congestion that Arbor residents have already impacted, but 60 homes compared to a water park would impact the schools, police, fire and far more traffic then any water park would!

While change is a good thing, I may suggest a wonderful book called "Who Moved the Cheese" to help this new resident to the Antioch area deal with the change to the town.

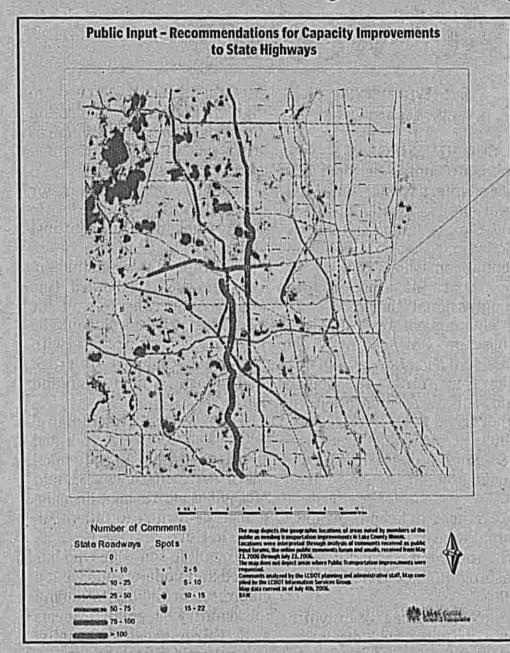

Being a lifelong resident of Antioch, I have had to deal with the change of more schools, higher taxes, more traffic, higher taxes, torn up roads due to heavy trucks building more homes, higher taxes, overcapacity sewer and water systems, higher taxes, lowering of speed limits due to more traffic, higher taxes, multiple police and fire stations, and higher taxes.

It is about time the village of Antioch builds something for all residents to enjoy. I sure don't use the skateboard park or baseball fields.

May I suggest the village of Antioch officials take a look at Pleasent Prairie Rex Plex, wonderful multi-purpose center built in the small town of Pleasent Prairie, Wis.

Lake County transportation dilemmas weigh in Public Input Forums highlight roads that residents feel need the most work

By HELEN MANSFIELD hmansfield@nwnewgroup.com

GRAYSLAKE - Notice the map on the left. On the map one might also notice some red lines of various thickness and intensity.

Theoretically, there is nothing out of the ordinary about this map.

It's a basic state highway map. Each one of those lines, which designates a road, should be black.

Over the last several months, these lines have be colored red by each of the more than 800 comments that have come from residents following the Public Input Forums held around Lake County.

The darker and thicker the red line, the more comments were left about that particular piece of road.

As part of their "One Voice, One Transportation Future" program, the Lake County Transportation Alliance hosted a meeting for elected officials Wednesday night at the College of Lake County. This was their first opportunity to see and hear the results of the six public input forums that the Alliance has hosted in May and June.

During these public forums, residents were invited to meet with representatives from the Lake County Division of Transportation, IDOT, the Tollway Authority, and others.

The meeting at the College of Lake County was a sort of pre-meeting, where officials could prepare the ballot for the Sept. 20, 2006 Transportation Summit.

In September, officials will prioritize the State Highway projects, along with those of Metra and PACE.

Illinois Representative JoAnn Osmond, R-Dist. 61, said state officials have complained that Lake County officials have been divided in the past on road improvements within the county.

"If Tim Martin [secretary of the Illinois State Department of Transportation] want consensus, we're going to give it to him," Osmond said slyly.

She said the answer is working with the state legislature, county board, and municipal officials in order to "get priorities on a list and fight for them."

McCain supports McSweeney

By STEVE PETERSON

speterson@nwnewsgroup.com

SCHAUMBURG - U.S. Sen. John McCain, R-Arizona, discussed international issues and local politics while giving a boost to the campaign of Dave McSweeney, a Barrington Republican, who is running for the seat in the Eighth Congressional District.

The appearance followed stops in Chicago by Vice President Dick Cheney and former New York City Mayor Rudy Guiallini, whom attended fundraisers for McSweeney, who is trying to oust first term U.S. Rep. Melissa Bean, D-Barrington, on the Nov. 7 bal-

"We need to keep taxes low, so that we can keep jobs in the U.S. and cut spending in Washington, D.C.," McSweeney McSweeney has recently hit Bean on her travel expenses and votes on energy bills.

The campaign is expected to cost both sides in the millions.

McCain is well known for his efforts on campaign finance reform.

"I think that the McCain-Feingold campaign finance reform act has largely worked," McCain said. "We need to tighten up the Federal Election Commission so billionaires can't put hundreds of thousands into the election."

The-Arizona senator his support to pledged McSweeney in his effort to oust Bean.

"I think that we should encourage good, dedicated fine young Americans to run for Congress," he said. "I would be pleased to work with McSweeney as I have with [U.S. Rep.] Mark Kirk, [R-Highland Park]."

Kirk Morris, of Gurnee, whose son, Geoffrey, was killed in action in Iraq, also attended the press conference. He told McCain of efforts to build a memorial dedicated to fallen soldiers in Gurnee.

"To talk to someone who has served and understands what a commitment means to defend the country is great," Morris said. "Citizens reap the benefits of military service, but to shake the hand of someone who has sacrificed, been a POW, served in Korea and Vietnam. Veterans understand what it means, 'ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country."

Talking Points

McCain commented on other matters at a press conference in Schaumburg:

On the escalating violence between Israel and Lebanon: "The president is in close contact with Israel on a daily basis. This is a crisis in the Middle East, because you have rogue nations, Iran and Syria, who are sponsoring Hezbollah and Hamas. They are the creations of Iranians. The rocket that hit the Israeli gunship could not have been fired without the permission of Iran. The United Nations resolution calls for the disarmament of Hezbollah and Hamas."

On the November congressional elections in general: "It will be a tough election. We need the president to veto some pork barrel, special interest legislation and it is imperative that there be progress in Iraq. Second, we need to show our Republican base that we have fiscal matters under control.

On the gas supply: "We need to expedite ethanol. There are seven new refineries for ethanol in Iowa, from 24 before. We also need to expand our nuclear energy capabilities. The technology is there. Solar is great, but it is not capable of producing enough energy for 10 years.

On immigration: "I have had several discussions with the president on the issue. I think that everything is on the table, including temporary worker status. I would hope that we could come to an agreement."

Best Apple Pie

he best Apple Pie that you will ever eat.

The secret is soaking the apples in the melted butter.

Serve warm to get the best rich butter flavor. Pour melted butter over sliced apples and soak a few minutes.

Combine sugar, flour, and spices.

Remove apples from butter (reserve any that is left and use in topping) Coat apples with sugar mixture, pour into pastry shell.

Combine topping ingredients and crumble over apples. Bake at 400° for 40 to 45 minutes, or until brown and apples are tender. Serve warm with a scoop of vanilla ice cream. Serving Size: 6

A Look Back -

Miss Wauconda Megan Thompson, a freshman at Western Michigan University, reacts as her name is announced as the 1999 Miss Lake County Fair Queen at the Lake County Fairgournds as Miss Winthrop Harbor lara lurner and Miss Mundelein Ariele Loizeaux look on.

The 2000 Fair Queens (from left) Jr. Miss Lake County Fair Ashley Willner, Miss Lake County Fair Samantha Miller will be ending their reigns this year.

2001 Molly Halvey, the reigning Miss Lake County Sara Neeve, and Little Miss Lake County Fair from Grayslake, receives her crown at last year's fair. She will pass it on to her successor on July 23 at 7 p.m. on the Main Stage.

Jessica Marro of Lake Villa is crowned Miss Lake County Fair 2002 by Miss Lake County Fair 2001 Molly Halvey during the pageant at the 2002 Lake County Fair.

The 2003 Lake County Fair Queens are Miss Lake County Fair Queen Meghan Cashman (Miss Grayslake), Junior Miss Lake County Fair Queen Alyssa Knauer (Jr. Miss Round Lake Area); and Little Miss Lake County Fair Queen Rachael Lester (Little Miss Libertyville).

2004 Miss Lake County Fair Queen, Courtney Dugan, Junior Miss Lake County Fair Queen Joanna Ptasinski and Little Miss Lake Courty Fair Queen Karolina Ptasinski take a ride at the fair.
